Oracle 1953

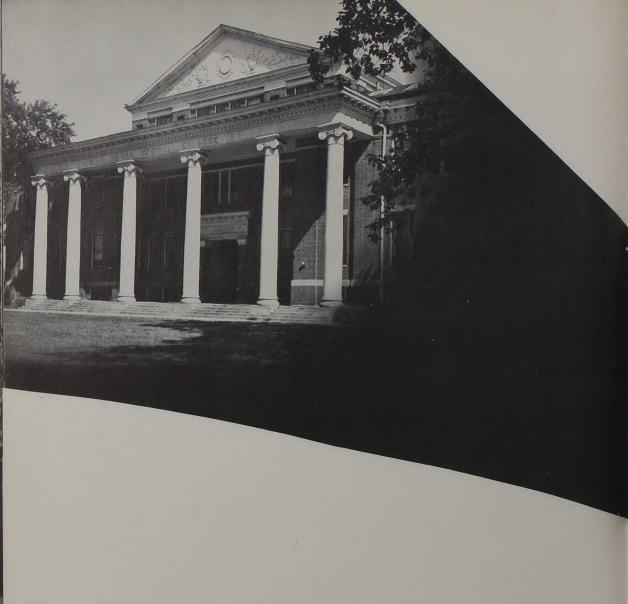

Indiana Central College Indianapolis, Indiana

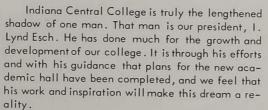

Foreword

The aim of the 1953 Oracle is to show the fourfold in which the lives of students at Indiana Central are developed and enriched. In our classes, in our library and laboratories, we work to develop our minds and to accumulate a store of knowledge, so that we may be better prepared for the tasks ahead of us. Thus we grow in wisdom. A program of athletics and physical education helps us to grow in stature. By learning the eternal truths of religion and passing these truths on to others through Christian service, we grow in favor with God. And through social activities, organizations, and the practice of student self-government, we learn to live and work with our fellows; hence we grow in favor with man.

An institution is the lengthened

His keen foresight, careful management, and untiring devotion to the interests of Christian education have won for our college a position of high rank in the educational world. He is enlisting spiritual and financial resources of our constituency for the realization of a greater Indiana Central.

Above all he is the friend of every student. He gives lavishly of his time, his interest, and the warmth of his heart.

Emerson

We Grow in Wisdom

Because a sound knowledge of the world and its people is the foundation for a useful life, the first phase of our growth in wisdom is formal study. By "hitting those books" we learn the facts that are the building blocks of both the physical and social sciences. The second phase of our growth in wisdom is, then, the training of our minds to organize and integrate this factual knowledge in order to use it creatively. Here is where those ceaseless struggles with termpapers and the long hours spent in the laboratory begin to bear fruit. But organized knowledge is of little worth if it is not used judiciously; therefore, in the third phase of our growth in wisdom we seek to absorb the cultural heritage of the race through acquaintance with the arts, philosophy, ethics, and religion, so that we may learn to use our knowledge with discernment and understanding.

Amid the balances and reagents of the chemistry lab, Betty Burch concocts a potent mixture as beginning students are introduced to the laws of matter.

Everything from friction...

The coefficient of friction is no mystery to Charles Smitley and Jack Avery, who juggle weights in the physics lab.

Making lanyards, buildings models, and weaving baskets are among the activities busily engaged in by the handicrafts class.

Tomorrow's business leaders learn to operate the tools of their trade.

...to fractions

Professor Sidebottom applies the calculus to a rate problem as Sam Hilton, deep in concentration, soaks it up.

Bill York demonstrates a replica of a frog to Anastacio Martinez, Ray Lee, Doctor Morgan, Jay Windell, and Glen Todd.

We Grow in Stature

Good physical condition is as essential to a student's success in college as his ability to do classwork, for the production of mental energy needed for keeping up with daily studies would soon fall behind schedule if the body were not aiven its share of attention. In addition to the eight semester-hours of physical education reguired as a part of the regular curriculum, a variety of athletic activities is available to both men and women students for the purpose of furthering physical health and development. Varsity athletic teams compete in intercollegiate football, basketball, baseball, track cross-country, tennis, and golf. A well-coached, hard-playing girls' basketball team, the Whippets, adds a femine touch to the year's net competition. And for all those students who find it impossible to participate invarsity athletics, there is the opportunity to play on any of the intramural teams, regularly organized in several sports.

Cross Country

Coach Jack Rice receives the championship trophy at the fall athletic banquet.

The Indiana Central Greyhounds extended their monopoly over the Hoosier College Conference in Cross Country by winning their third straight conference championship for coach Jack Rice.

Highlight of the season was the trip to Elmhurst, III. where the Central harriers' victory marred the Elmhurst homecoming. Freshman Jim Jones was the most promising underclassman, finishing first for I.C.C. in the last few meets after J. C. White's ankle gave out on him.

We Grow in Favor with God

Voices of students in the college choir, trio, and quartet are raised together in the fellowship of song. Other students give of their time and talent to take part in church choirs, to teach Sunday School classes, to act as assistant Pastors, to lead youth groups, and to go caroling at Christmastime. The Girls Mission Guild, the Central Ministerial Association, the Student Christian Association, and the college Youth Fellowship are organizations on our campus which help us to build Christian lives and Christian characters. The devotion rooms in our dormitories, weekly prayer meetings, and challenging chapel programs are all vital parts of religious life at Central. The whole student body comes together to take part in the religious Emphasis Week services which highlight the entire religious program. Thus students at Indiana Central grow in favor with God.

We Grow in Favor with Man

Laughter rings across the campus and everywhere we go -- in the bookstore, the dining hall, the classrooms, the dormitories--we see groups of students engaged in friendly conversation. This friendly spirit is carried throughout all activities at Central--parties, clubs, banquets, and ballgames. The Student Christian Association plans special events such as the annual Christmas party, taffy pulls, Leap Week, and the Flat Rock Retreat. But our social growth is not composed entirely of parties and play. Many students have jobs on and off campus. Others work together to bring you The Oracle and The Reflector. Almost all students play a working part in one or more of Central's many clubs and organizations. All of these together help us to grow in favor with man.

Seniors

John Reed, class president, lends a helping hand to vice-president Joyce Liechty as other members of the senior brain trust, Joan Dennis, Secretary, and Beverly Burkhardt, treasurer, look on.

Baccalaureate and Graduation exercises climax an eventful year for the Senior class and bring down the final curtain on their four years of striving toward the long-awaited goal.

Six seniors, selected on the basis of their excellent records of scholarship, citizenship, service, and extracurricular activity, received recognition by Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. These are: Arthur Bright, Melba Edwards, Margaret Ewert, David Hilton, Joe Hurrle, and Joyce Liechty.

The seniors of '53 spent their skip day at Mammoth Cave, but their plans failed to escape detection by the juniors.

As the year draws to a close, thoughts of books and exams are all but lost amid a shower of activities—Senior Recognition day and special senior privileges, the Junior—Senior Banquet, the Senior play, senior week, and finally—the big day

In Memoriam

Last summer our friend and classmate, John Sharp, died of polio. In spite of working to put himself through school, Jack was a good scholar and participated in many extra-curricular activities. He wanted to give his life in service as a Christian doctor. Jack lived more in 21 years than many who have lived longer. In memoriam, the student Council and Reflector launched the John Sharp Polio Drive.

The busy junior class has charge of editing the school yearbook, and plays host to the seniors at the Junior-Senior Banquet. In order to raise funds for this event, the juniors produce a class play and sponsor a carnival at which other classes and campus organizations rent concession space from the juniors. A Campus Queen, who will reign during the senior year, is chosen from the junior class by the student body.

Work week, during which the freshmen had to work in shifts, cleaning up the campus grounds and dormitories, was conceived by the sophomores as a profitable way of putting freshmen talents to use. The sophomores were victorious in the tug-of-war, dunking the freshmen and handing them the privilege of wearing their green beanies until Thanksgiving. This year's sophomores also sponsored a bake sale, and furnished us with a rare opportunity for eating in chapel.

Freshmen

Leroy Rogers, president; Jim Weber, student council representative; Lois Morgan, secretary; Sandra Anderson, treasurer; and Bill Raspberry, vice president, look over future freshmen plans.

This year a promising crop of freshmen donned the traditional green beany and accepted the customary yoke of servitude—the tasks of carrying the upperclassmen's books and trays, shining their shoes, opening doors, and that long wait at the end of the line. But they soon recovered their self-respect and proved their class spirit by walking off with the stunt night trophy.
