campus life?

—RYAN REDMON, SENIOR, THEATRE

"The men's basketball game against USI was one of my favorite memories, because it was one of the first times I saw true school spirit demonstrated by everyone. The crowd was standing and cheering, which really helped create a sense of pride in U of I! Hopefully, spirit like that will be the norm instead of the exception."

Katherine Hendrix
Sophomore, English and history

"My favorite campus memory was the public debate that was held in the Christel DeHann Center to discuss closing Hanna Avenue. The student body really pulled together to express their ideas calmly and articulately to a group of hostile community members. It really showed the true character of the students."

Valerie Leis
Senior, human biology

"One of my favorite memories was being chosen to be a member of the Homecoming senior court. It was a real honor for me. It was also fun because a good friend of mine, whom I've known for 12 years, was my escort."

Jolie Wiese
Senior, music

Hanna Avenue closing denied

A proposal to close Hanna Avenue between Otterbein and Mathews was brought to a halt by community opposition. President G. Benjamin Lantz's proposal to the city of Indianapolis would have ensured pedestrian safety by replacing the busy street with grass, shrubs, and trees while rerouting traffic to area streets.

Opponents dominated a public meeting in the Ruth Lilly Performance Hall October 26 and presented petitions against closing Hanna Avenue to the city.

After much discussion on both sides of the issue, the city rejected the proposal, but left the door open for future talks.

Students speak out

Former ISG president Phil Quinn represented students in the often-heated debate with local residents about the fate of Hanna Avenue.

The winter of our discontent

Campus was blanketed in snow and ice this winter, as record snowfalls severely afflicted Indiana and other areas of the country, crippling the nation's capital for nearly a week. In what proved to be an unusually long winter, snow flurries were spotted in Indianapolis as late as April 9.

Esch Hall undergoes exterior renovations

The east end of Esch Hall received a facelift this year.

In what was the beginning of renovations, crumbling steps leading to Ransburg Auditorium were replaced. The sidewalk leading to the north entrance was angled to allow the physically challenged easier access to the building.

Other planned renovations include providing space in the auditorium for the physically challenged, moving the sound booth to the first floor, enlarging the stage, reconstructing the restrooms, and reworking the lobby.

O.J. Simpson acquitted of murder in a stunning verdict

In an Oct. 3 verdict that stunned the nation, O.J. Simpson was acquitted of murdering his ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and Ronald Goldman. The jury in the so-called "trial of the century" was the longest sequestered jury on record, having been closeted for a year. The victims' families have filed charges against Simpson in civil court.

One of a few

"I was one of a few who thought it was a good verdict," said freshman Amy Springer, watching the televised verdict. "The prosecution didn't prove beyond a reasonable doubt he was guilty."

Hang man

Rod Kennedy, a physical plant staff member, is shown installing a University of Indianapolis banner in the Esch Hall parking lot. New this year, the banners hung from light poles in many locations around campus. The brainchild of several university staff members, the banners were part of a campus-wide beautification effort that included landscaping around the Christel DeHaan Fine Arts Center.

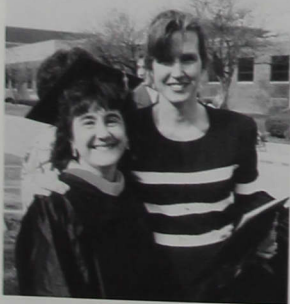

Presidential candidate Dole visits graduate at her party

When Jane Armour planned her graduation party, she expected about 50 relatives and friends. She didn't expect a motorcade bearing presidential candidate Bob Dole, who was in Indianapolis for a Hoosier Republican function.

Dole learned about Jane from an Indianapolis Star article describing her courage in fighting back from a devastating car accident in 1988 that left her comatose for three weeks. The senator, who spent more than three years in rehabilitation resulting from World War II injuries, was moved by Jane's determination and triumph.

The senator planned to phone Jane during the party, but when guests began to arrive, they were greeted by Secret Service agents who told them Dole would visit Jane in person. Amid an escort of eight motorcycle policemen and a throng of reporters and photographers, he arrived at Bethany Christian Church, where Jane's party was held.

Dole hugged and congratulated Jane and gave her a signed copy of his autobiography. Before he left, the senator invited Jane to a party he hopes to throw soon—an inaugural celebration in 1997. Jane accepted.

I want to see Mickey and Minnie Jane Armour and Linda Dye, an instructor in the Department of Social Sciences, smile after the commencement ceremony. When Dole asked Jane about her post-graduation plans, the mother of one said, "I want to go to Disney World."

fall frolic

For 44 years, members of the university community have gathered at Brown County State Park for a day free from classes. The 1995 event drew students, faculty, and staff to the rolling hills of southern Indiana for a day in the autumn sunshine.

Although established to give everyone a break from classes and provide a chance to enjoy the colorful fall season, the day also means more.

"Brown County Day is not just about taking a day off; it's about affirming and celebrating the university community," explained Professor Perry Kea.

Added Junior Erika Zimmerman, "Personally, I like to walk around the park and see the trees, but I know some people who just come for the caramel apples."

Many students camp in the park the night before, although this year rain made things a little damp. "We just camp out and have a good time. Nobody cares what they look like," said sophomore Heather Tobias. There was also a hayride for campers who braved the elements.

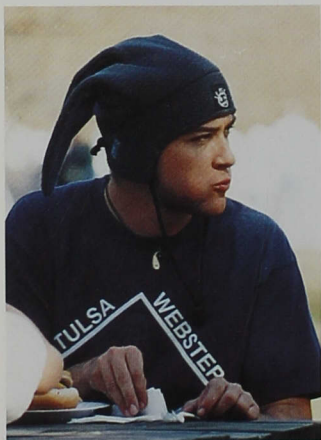

Fun in the sun

These three students stand back and enjoy the fall scenery. After lunch and other activities were over, students could hike numerous trails winding through the park or ride horses.

On top of the world

Stacey Shaker, freshman, perches on playground equipment to get a bird's eye view of the festivities. The sunshine was so warm that many took advantage of the day to stretch out and relax.

Just jestin'

Clay Davis wore a jester's hat while hanging out and having fun.

Apples all around

Juniors Jenny Shultz and Sheri Burkhalter munch caramel apples, a favorite Brown County Day treat.

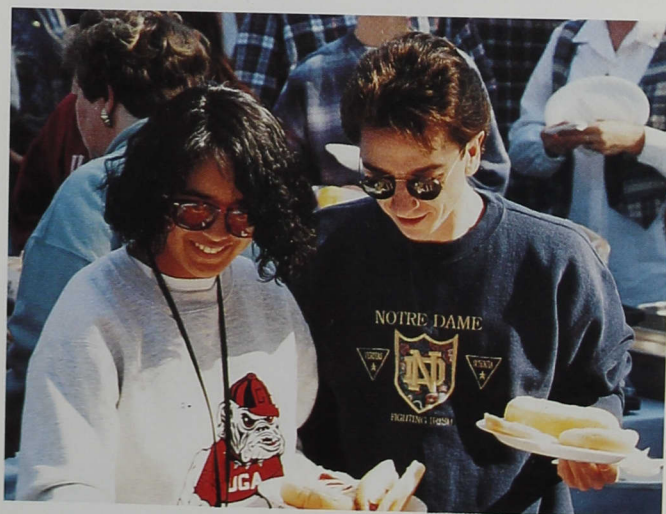

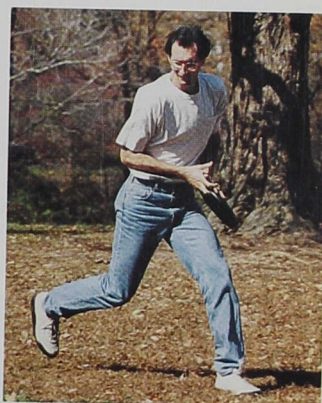

Tossing eggs

These three students participate in an egg toss after the picnic. Other post-picnic games included touch football and a three-legged race.

Frisbee, anyone?

Chemistry professor Joe Burnell proves that faculty know how to have fun, too. Brown County Day gives faculty a chance to interact with students outside the classroom.

Fill 'er up!

Ann Sombun and Fred Withrow fill their plates. The food, which included hamburgers, hot dogs, salads, and other fixings, was provided by Ted Polk and his staff.

Senior strength

These seniors wait to begin the tug-of-war. The annual contest pits the freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior classes against each other, with the winners competing against faculty.

annual arrival

human bowling, a bungee run, hot air balloon rides, a pig roast, and a stand-up comedian were all part of the first two weekends during the 1995-96 year.

Orientation Weekend welcomes new students and helps them get oriented before the start of classes. The weekend is full of opportunities for new students to meet people and learn more about university life through workshops and social activities.

Freshman Andy Ault said, "Orientation Weekend is important because it gives freshmen a chance to adjust to life away from home plus meet new people before classes start."

Other activities during the weekend included Monte Carlo Night, when students used "U of I bucks" to gamble and bid for prizes from the bookstore.

Ending the first full week of classes was the ISG-sponsored Hog Wild Weekend. The schedule included a sand volleyball tournament and a pre-football game picnic, complete with a roasted pig.

ISG also handed out free tickets to an Indianapolis Indians baseball game that weekend to all students willing to give their best Hoosier "hog call."

Lazy afternoon

Lori Brister relaxes while watching volleyball during Hog Wild Weekend. Students used the three-day Labor Day weekend to have fun after the first week of school.

Spare me!

This student is "bowled over" by his stint as a human bowling ball. Brave souls were bowled into foam rubber pins at the end of an "alley."

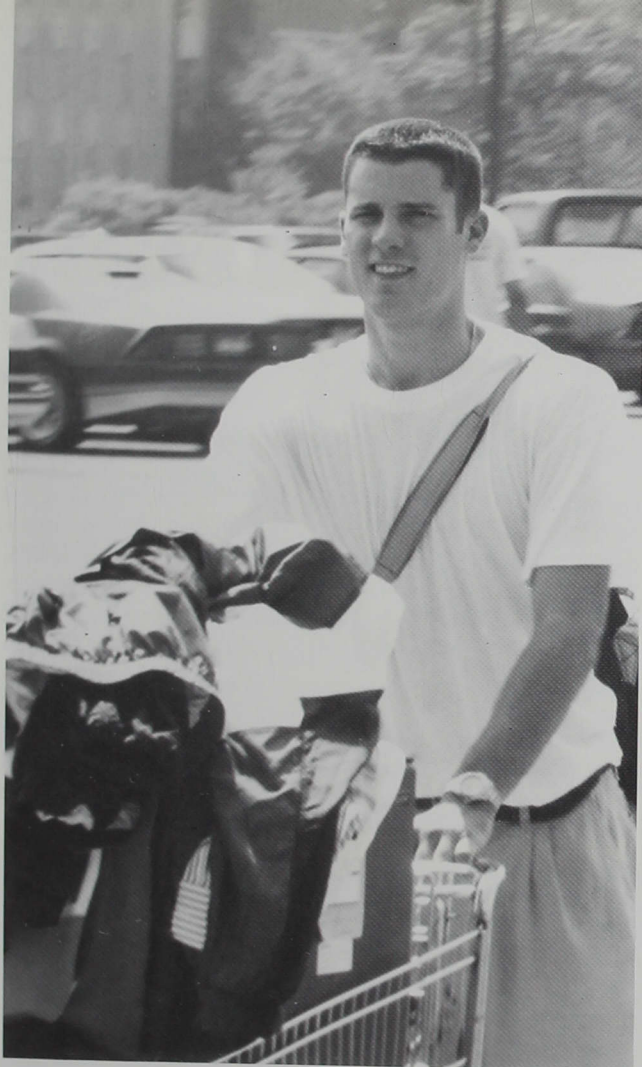

Hit me with your best shot!

Sophomore Todd Vaught uses powerful punches to battle an opponent in the inflated boxing ring. Vaught, an RA in North Hall, provided new and returning students with some laughs by exercising on stage with comedian Craig Tournquist, who posed as fitness celeb Richard Simmons.

Behind home plate

Greg Rakestraw shows freshman Steve Pendleton how to kick back at Bush Stadium. It was the last year for baseball at Bush—the Indianapolis Indians have a new downtown home, Victory Field, which opened July 7, 1996.

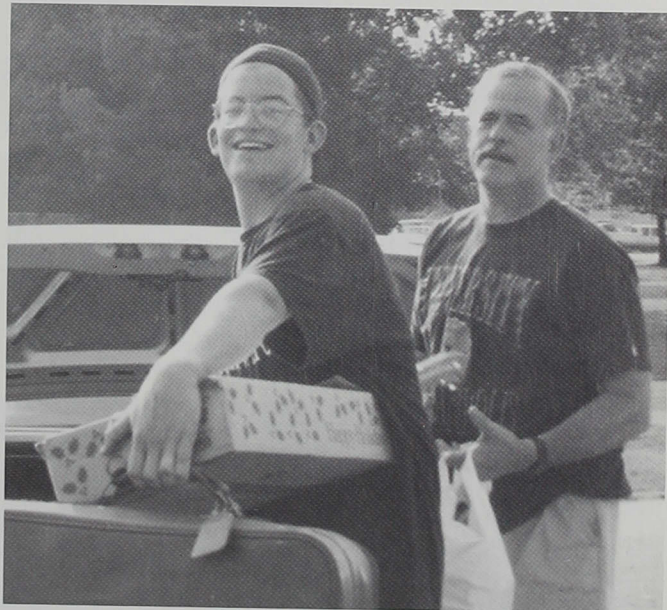

Movin' right along

Freshman Andrew Weaver moves his things into a residence hall. New students had help moving from faculty, staff, RA's, Greyhound Ambassadors, and even President Lantz.

Lending a helping hand

Jake Fetherolf and Jim Ream helped haul suitcases, boxes, and other possessions into the residence halls.

Hot off the grill

Ted Polk serves burgers in University Park during Orientation Weekend's student and faculty picnic. The event gives students a chance to get acquainted with their instructors before the start of classes.

Bungee man

Dan Ardivin tries the bungee run during Orientation Weekend. "Saturday in the Park" featured outrageous games, food, and music provided by local radio station WRZX, X-103.

Homecoming

*I'll never

h omecoming spirit lasted all week long this year. Throughout Homecoming Week, there were a variety of activities designed to get students fired up and ready to cheer the Greyhounds on to victory at Saturday's football match-up.

The festivities began with the male "beauty" contest, an annual spoof featuring male students dressed in drag. The following evening featured a special showing of the film Pulp Fiction.

The Residence Hall Association sponsored a mid-week snack break, complete with goofy games like the no-hands pudding eating and "chubby bunny" contests.

In addition, a bonfire rally, with caramel apples and cider, was held the night before the game.

Frigid weather didn't stop Greyhound fans from packing the stadium on Saturday afternoon for the game.

While members of the Homecoming Court shivered during halftime, Martha Coomer and Anthony Hibbs were crowned 1995 Homecoming Queen and King.

Although the 'Hounds lost the match to Northern Michigan, everybody still enjoyed the chance to see the team in action.

What a drag!

Participants in the male beauty contest prepare for a "girls' night out." When asked why he participated, Jake Fetherolf (far right) said, "I won last year and had to defend my title."

Three's company

Put a marshmallow in it

Kensey Snider, a sophomore, does his chubby bunny imitation during the mid-week snack break. Participants in the contest stuffed themselves with large marshmallows and then tried to say "chubby bunny."

Look ma, no hands!

Freshman Scott Luttrell wins the pudding-eating contest. Contestants ate large bowls of chocolate pudding as fast they could without using their hands or utensils.

Going to court

Homecoming court member Tyler Trueblood is captured before the the King and Queen are crowned. Tyler's a senior in physical ed.

In with the new, out with the old

Queen Martha Coomer and King Anthony Hibbs smile after their coronation by President and Mrs. Lantz. Coomer, Hibbs, and other members of the court were chosen by student ballot the week before the game.

Over 3,000 runners and walkers—not afraid to “bear” the frigid February temperatures—converged on campus to participate in the 15th annual Polar Bear Run & Walk.

Co-sponsored by the university and Mr. D’s Food Market, the event attracts local and out-of-state “polar bears” of all ages. The walkers and runners follow a 5-mile course which begins and ends in front of Nicoson Hall.

The Run & Walk depends on students, staff, and faculty volunteers to act as course workers, help with registration, and work as split timers.

North Hall won a contest, sponsored by the Office of Alumni & Parent Relations, to recruit volunteers. Over 100 North Hall residents volunteered in some capacity for the event, and all North residents were treated to ice cream during finals week.

Asked what she enjoyed most about Polar Bear Run, course worker Gina Montgomery said, “My favorite part of working was when the runners and walkers would come by and wave and thank us for standing out in the cold.”

Melissa Milburn got up early to help with registration. “It’s interesting because people are enthusiastic regardless of the weather,” she reported.

Get your cold water here!

Athletic trainer Paula Doering volunteered at the water table, serving thirsty Polar Bears after they crossed the finish line. Hot dogs, chips, fruit, cookies, and soda were available in the gym after the race.

I’d rather be inside

Vijitha Amarasekara helped record times at the finish line. Vijitha, a senior in physical education and sports administration, came close to representing her native Sri Lanka in track and field at the 1996 Olympics.

Friendly competition (above) Jeremy Padgett and Jamie Jackson head toward the starting line. They used the opportunity to get some exercise and spend quality time together.

He's not even winded yet
Bill McLin, an avid runner, looks like he could run the course all over again. Bill is a senior in art.

What do I look like—an Eskimo?
Senior Jess Bader reluctantly bundled up in her warmest gear to venture out in the early morning hours and cheer for her roommate.

Where's Waldo?
Wes Woodson wore a colorful tie-dye and wool cap so he wouldn't get lost in the crowd. Wes is a sophomore majoring in U.S. history teaching.

I love adrenaline
Kristi Lehman, a senior in political science who was awarded the Socratic Award in Philosophy, lets off extra energy after walking the 5-mile course.

What a guy

Phil Quinn sets up a sound system on the steps of Schwitzer Center. Phil has handled the music at many campus events since he's been at U of I.

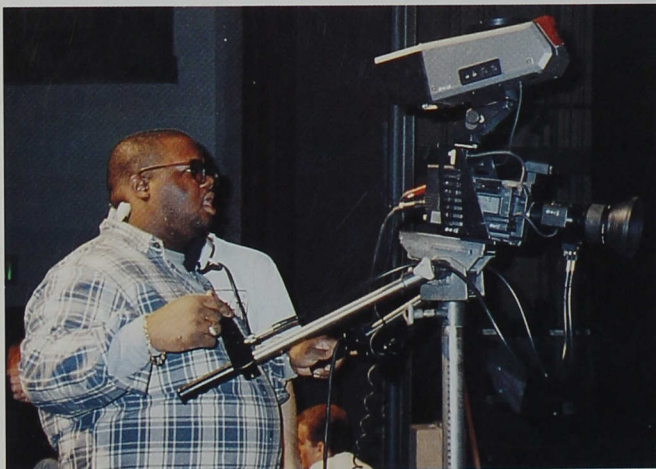

Mixin' it up

Bill Yanney gets into the groove at the Cyclorama dance held in Warren Hall. Bill is a freshman majoring in business administration.

Sporty!

Carmen Young shows off the sports bottles that ISG sold as Cyclorama souvenirs. Carmen, who's majoring in social work, is a member of ISG's Christian Life Committee.

Behind the scenes

Ron Walton, a sophomore in communications, was behind the camera as students created their own "Late Night" spin-off. Making the video was one way Campus Camp-in students got involved in Cyclorama events.

It's a good look for him

This student was captured at "Lilly 'lympics" with a face full of cheese puffs. The object of the game was unclear, but the obvious outcome was to make participants look funny.

The next best thing
Junior Kelli Carr decided that since the real race was cancelled, tricycle races were the next best thing. All of the rained-out Cyclorama events were held in Nicoson Hall gym.

Twistin' the night away

rainy racing

Despite having to cancel the bicycle race because of rain, the 16th annual Cyclorama weekend was far from a total loss. ISG did an excellent job of planning a weekend jam-packed with activities.

Cyclorama events began with a concert by the Indianapolis-based band, the Why Store. As expected, there was a large crowd of appreciative fans in attendance.

Prospective students, on campus as part of the "Campus Camp-in," spent the weekend with student hosts in the dorms.

Everybody got to participate in Cyclorama events like the "Lilly 'Lympics," which involved competitions between residence hall teams, an Admissions office team, and a Campus Camp-in team, to see who could earn the most points in tricycle races and other games.

Participants also filmed U of I's own version of MTV's "Singled Out," with four lucky couples winning a free dinner at Outback Steakhouse.

Local radio station X-103 was also on campus and broadcasted from the gym, giving away numerous prizes while students played Twister and sparred with inflatable boxing gloves.

Katherine Hendrix, co-chair of ISG's Cyclorama committee, said, "We worked with the Admissions office to get a lot more people involved and make Cyclorama a bigger campus event."

The dedication and hard work of ISG members helped ensure that the weekend was a success.

He floats like a butterfly and stings like a bee
This student dreams of being the next heavyweight champion of the world. The giant gloves and inflatable boxing ring were popular Cyclorama attractions.

haunted holiday

Up to their old tricks (far right)
Christie Miller, Hannah Strickland, and Jennifer Bowman of Warren Hall lie in wait for unlucky trick-or-treaters.

Guarding against goblins
Kirshawndra James and Robin Parrish are on the alert in Warren Hall, looking out for hobgoblins and other creatures of the night.

A good witch?

Only trick-or-treaters who went to Cravens Hall know for sure if Angela Padol, an elementary education major, was a good witch or a bad witch.

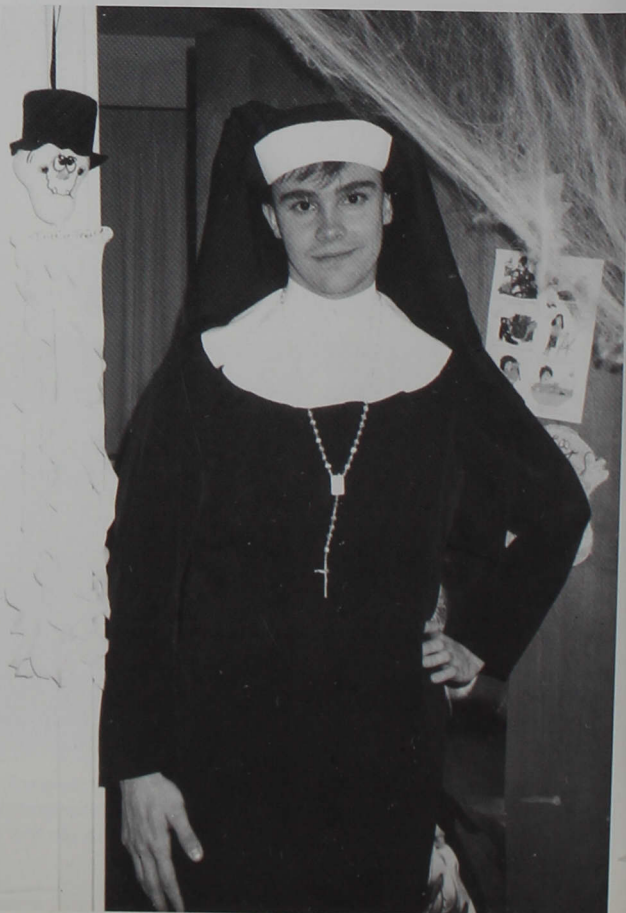

Stick 'em up!

Freshmen Sara Clark and Katie Marquis lie in wait for unlucky Warren Hall residents. The daring duo blocked the hallway and demanded candy in return for letting residents pass safely to their rooms.

Twisted sister

Chuq Johnson of North Hall was holier than usual this Halloween. Rosaries aren't worn around the neck, Chuq, but that's probably the least of your problems.

Little tramp

Freshman Russell McGee wandered around North Hall dressed as Charlie Chaplin. It must be hard to ask for treats when you're a silent film star—good thing the talkies came along!

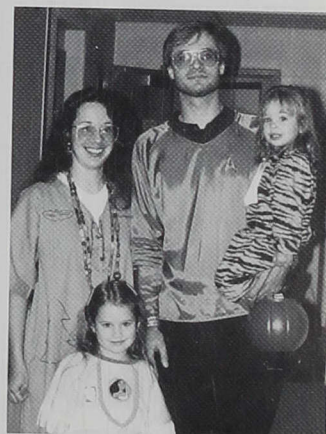

It's a jungle out there

John Frysinger, a freshman wrestler, is living proof that college life can be a real jungle. John is majoring in commercial art.

Beam me up, Daddy!

Biology professor and Star Trek fan Steve Nawrocki "trek-or-treats" with wife Susan and daughters Jenna and Heather. Each of the residence halls provided trick-or-treating opportunities for children of faculty and staff.

Two pretties and a pumpkin

Carrie Burchfield and Amy Webster carved their friend "Moe" for the pumpkin carving contest held in North Hall. Categories included most original, most traditional, and scariest.

Don't fear the Reaper

Tara Dillon shows no fear of Bill Brownlee's Grim Reaper as they make some Halloween mischief in North Hall. Both are freshmen.

Global granny

Shawn Denney poses with the Bulgarian woman he calls his other Grandma. Denney lived with her during his summer visit to Bulgaria.

Sharing the experience

Carey Craig speaks at a coffee hour that featured students talking about their international experiences. Carey, a political science major, spent the first semester of his junior year studying in England.

An international advocate

Dawar Butt, Chiyoko Kagoe, Mimi Chase, Jawad Barbar, and Kashif Khan enjoy a picnic for international students. Mimi plays an important role in furthering cultural awareness on campus. She also counsels and advises members of the university's international population, which this year included 138 faculty, staff, and students from 59 nations across the globe.

Behind the iron curtain

Shariq Siddiqui, a senior, lunches in front of the former Bulgarian prime minister's home, which was turned into a hotel after the ruler was overthrown. Shariq was born in England, and while he's lived in both Pakistan and Saudi Arabia, he says, "I call myself an American."

Coffee, anyone?

Junior Wesla Roberts attends an International Coffee Hour which featured Middle Eastern countries. Speakers at these coffee hours are usually students and faculty who originated from or spent time in the featured country or region.

A fair exchange

Zulkifli Abdul Razak, a native of Malaysia, and Alexandra Kollia and Ioannis Glykos, both from Greece, visit in the lobby of the library before the Flag Day ceremony. The university's satellite campuses in Athens and Cyprus have created a large international population at the Indianapolis campus through an exchange program.

distinctly diverse

Increasing international awareness and achieving cultural diversity are two important goals at this university.

Marilyn "Mimi" Chase, Director of International Programs, helps students organize activities and events to further cultural awareness and integration.

The largest such event is the annual "Celebration of the Flags," which honors the university's international community by raising and displaying the national flag of each country from which current students, faculty, or staff originate.

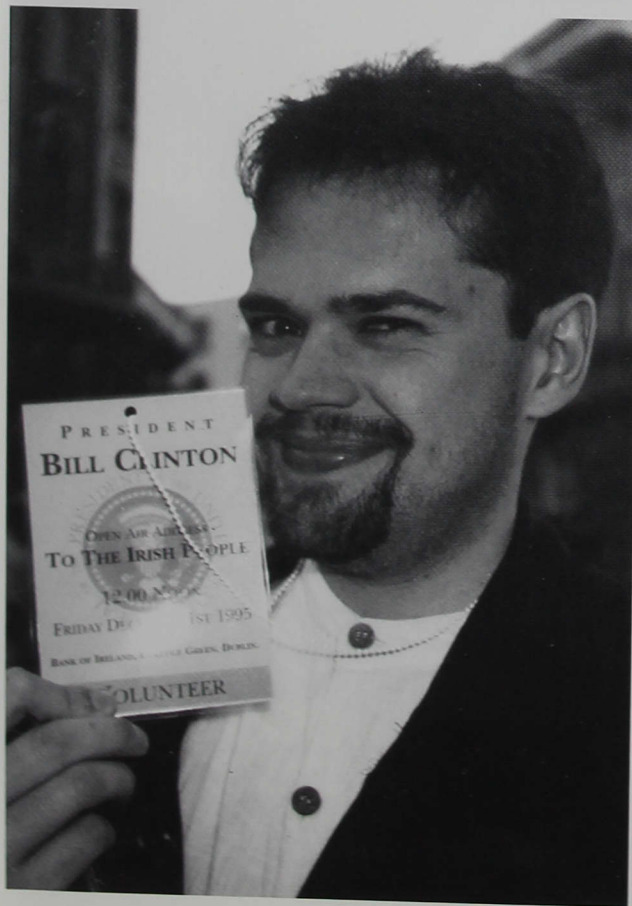

The popular International Coffee Hours and International Dinners provide opportunities to sample international cuisine, listen to speakers, and see international performers and entertainers.

All U of I students are encouraged to broaden their cultural perspective by taking advantage of opportunities to study abroad.

This year, senior Shawn Denney spent the summer in Bulgaria and the fall semester in Ireland. Shawn has also spent time in China.

Carey Craig, a junior, spent the fall semester in Lancashire, England. Said Carey, "The experience was wonderful and positive. I strongly recommend that all students take advantage of the opportunities that are available to study abroad."

Was it all blarney?

Shawn Denney displays a volunteer badge which allowed "backstage" access for President Clinton's well-received address to the people of Ireland. Denney spent his semester in Ireland working toward a history degree.

Spreading the word

Visiting faculty Daochao Jiang speaks with other international visitors as her daughter, Xiaoan Li, enjoys the sunshine. Daochao taught Chinese to students interested in learning the language.

They're all that and a bag of chips. Athletes Molly Sloffer, Mandi Updegraff, and Mariah Owen traded their track uniforms for more formal attire in anticipation of the Spring Formal.

Can I have s'more?

Samson Okello, a native of Uganda, attempts to roast the very first marshmallow at the North Hall hayride in October. Samson is a biology major.

Fat Tuesday

Paul Balbo, a senior majoring in biology and chemistry, helped set up the Mardi Gras celebration in March. Paul graduated magna cum laude.

The Hustler

Minnesota Fats he ain't! But Ryan Redmon's pool game was good enough to for him to be elected North Hall's "Game Room Guru."

Leslie Carter, Dede Bragg, Vicki Ransdell, and Cindy Holzhausen take a break from studying for finals by visiting the Baskin Robbins ice cream shop at Southern Plaza.

Flower girl

Vicki Erb adorns her braids with wild violets she found growing near North Hall. Vicki is a freshman majoring in human biology.

I love you, man

Freshmen journalism major Spencer Block and Bryan Miller, an art major, publicly display their affection in the North Hall lobby. The lobby was often filled with friends who gathered to watch a movie, play Axis and Allies, or engage in a game of pool.

He's got connections

Aaron Lambert loves having an Internet connection in the comfort of his own room. This year, North Hall became the first dorm to offer students Internet access.

wacky Warren

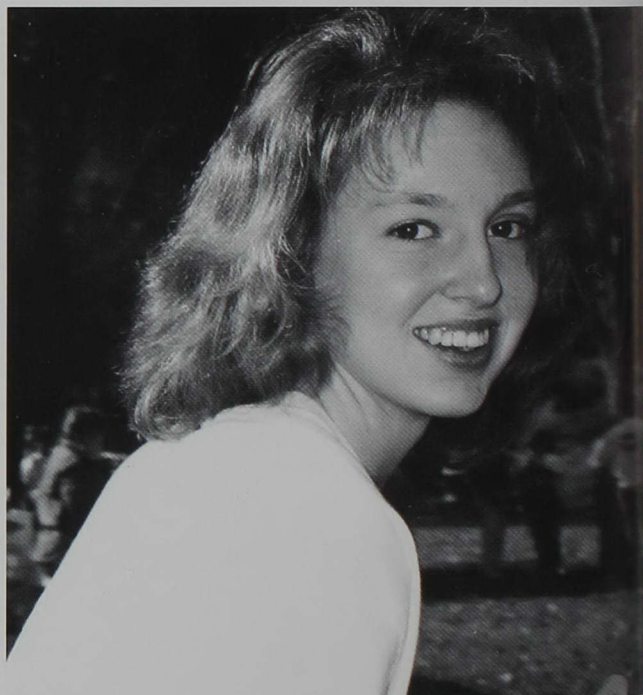

Can I help you?

Psychology major Nyla Harris earns extra spending money by working at the Warren Hall front desk. The desk is staffed 24 hours a day and is the place for security assistance in the late night and early morning hours.

What a day for a daydream

Toni Scott, a Warren Hall resident and a freshman in biology, enjoys a beautiful day at Brown County State Park.

The check's in the mail

Warren Hall resident Kim Karin works in the Esch Hall mailroom, helping collect and sort mail for the entire building.

A gut buster

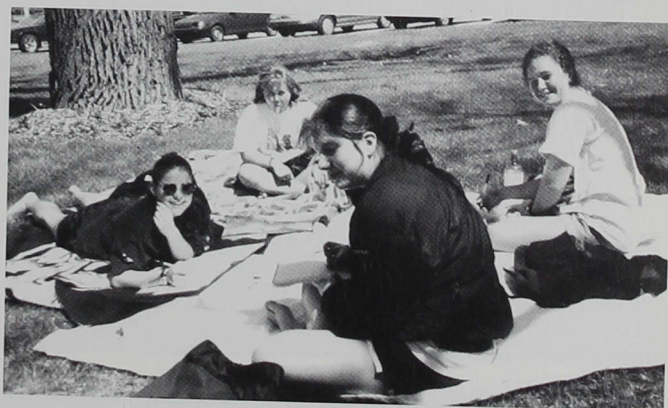

Heather Kissel and Erin Miller enjoy a sit-down Christmas dinner in the dining hall. The dinner has a large turn-out due to the favorite fare of turkey, mashed potatoes, and a whole chocolate cream pie brought right to your table.

Sunny studies

These Warren women—Sara Clark, Katie Marquis, Hannah Marcinkovich, and Jessica Prothero—make the best of studying for finals by doing it outdoors in the sunshine.

Welcome to the Greyhound Cafe

Deana Labriola makes a sign for the "Greyhound Cafe," Warren Hall's theme for the Homecoming lobby decorating contest. Deana, a sophomore, is majoring in international business and Spanish.

How about a little team work?

These Warren Hall residents put together a team for "Lilly 'Lympics" at Cyclorama. Unfortunately, they couldn't fend off the North Hall team, who walked away with the gold medal.

Melancholy baby

Erica Sceggell, a freshman, dressed up for Halloween. Erica was sad because no one shared their candy with her!

He's a good helper

Freshman Kahled Darwazeh helps decorate Warren Hall the night before Homecoming.

Singin' in the rain

It seemed like the rain this year just wouldn't quit—so instead of being bummed out over it, freshman Sara Phillips (right) went out and played in it. Sara, a human biology major, tried to convince Anita Clark, a freshman in accounting to do the same, but Anita wasn't going for it.

In the ring

RA Bryant Tutterow climbs in the ring during Cyclorama. Bryant is a junior majoring in marketing.

Earth angels?

Goin' retro

Susan Sterba, a sophomore majoring in music teaching, sports a retro look in this floppy hat. (And some people wonder what was so great about the 60s—go figure).

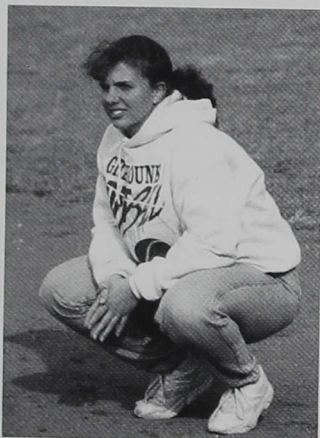

Ready, aim, fire

Cravens resident Carrie Burchfield, a sophomore in nursing, plays tic-tac-toe at Cyclorama.

Hard at work or hardly working?
Junior Michael Sturm takes a break. Michael spent much of Junior Aaron Lambert is definitely excited! Aaron obviously had a blast at this ISG-sponsored concert.

Smiley girl
Junior Cindy Holzhausen, who's majoring in psychology, is all smiles as the end of the academic year approaches.

—COREY ZAVELA, SENIOR, LAW AND POL. SCI.

"My favorite memory was the volleyball game we played against Northern Kentucky at home. We played so well as a team, and it was the first time the fans really seemed to enjoy the play. I think this match proved to a lot of people that we can play some intense volleyball."

Paula Miller
Junior, human biology

"The most memorable experience for me this year was the soccer playoff victory over top-seeded Lewis University in the first round of the Great Lakes Valley Conference tournament. The victory was one of the biggest in our team's history, and we finished in a tie for third place in the GLVC—our highest placing ever."

Rich Miotke
Senior, biology

"At one of the last football games, it was so cold we had gigantic heaters on the sidelines to keep warm. During halftime, I put my feet next to one of them, but I must have gotten too close because my shoes burnt black and my shoelaces melted. Luckily, my toes stayed warm for the second half!"

Elena Tuason

WHAT A RUSH

The Greyhound 1995-96 football campaign ended on a high note with an impressive 14-0 shut-out against Saint Joseph's in Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference (MIFC) play. The team finished the season with a 3-7 record in the MIFC, their best league record since 1990. The team also finished in a tie for eighth place in the 12-team MIFC, matching its best finish ever. The Greyhounds marked a 3-8 overall record, again the best since the 1990 season.

Standouts Jeff Barnaby and Phil Shiban played key roles in this year's campaign. After the team's contest against Northwood, Jeff was fifth in the MIFC with a team-high 94 stops. Three-year starter Phil rushed for a career-high 183 yards and two touchdowns on 25 carries.

In looking back on the season, sophomore Adam Watkins said, "We had a disappointing season, but we're looking forward to next year. We won the last game of the season, and open next year with that same team. We've also got a lot of starters coming back. So, we hope to improve on this year." Added freshman Spencer Block, "College football means a lot of hard work, patience, and dedication."

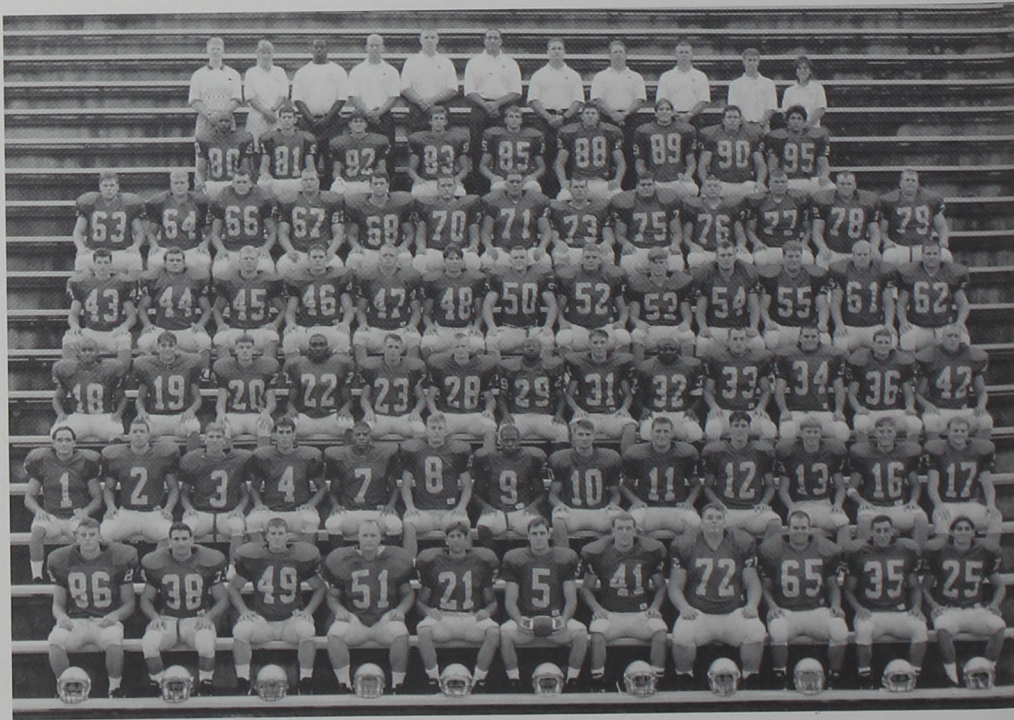

"This year
was a

Homecoming '95

Omar Farmer, a sophomore from San Francisco, and Andy Roell, a freshman from Indianapolis, watch the Homecoming action against Northern Michigan. The final score was 28-14.

HUT!

The Greyhound offensive line prepares to push hard for a score while hoping the quarterback will throw a touchdown pass.

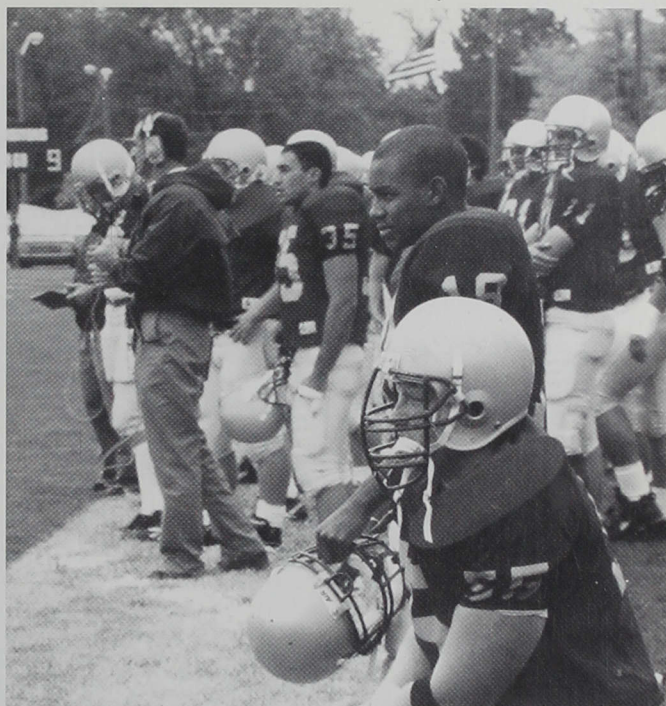

Throw fast, Kev!

Freshman QB Kevin Kreinhagen prepares to pass as FB Corey Zavela blocks. Kevin, who's majoring in biology and pre-dentistry, had a passing efficiency of 74.85 this year, which paid off when he was on the move. Corey, a senior, was one of 11 Greyhounds who played their final collegiate game this year.

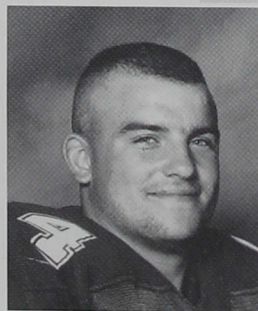

It's all academic

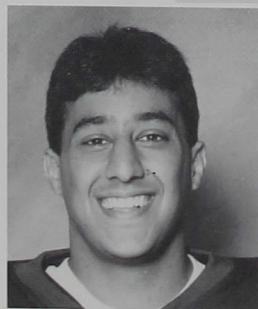

Senior defensive player Ted Munson was named to the 1995 GTE/College Sports Information Directors of America Academic All-American Football Team. Ted, a senior marketing major with a 3.80 GPA, also earned academic All-American honors in 1994. The two-year starter played against Michigan Tech with a cast on his injured hand after breaking his thumb in practice.

GREYHOUND GREATS

Junior Jeff Barnaby was awarded the team MVP for defense after setting records and leading in statistics all season. Against St. Francis, Jeff led the way with 16 tackles to improve his season total to 129, good for third in the MIFC. Jeff is majoring in accounting and marketing.

Senior Phil Shiban earned recognition for his excellent offensive play and incredible performance in his final collegiate game. He led the team in rushing, receiving, scoring, and kick-off returns. He finishes his career with 1,836 yards rushing, for tenth on the school's all-time list. Phil is an accounting major who graduated magna cum laude this year.

VOLLEYBALL

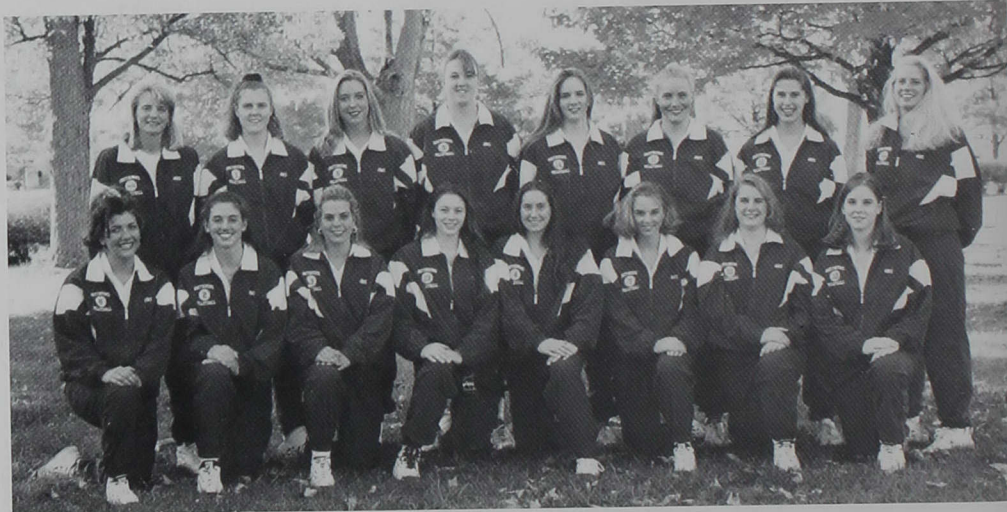

KILLER INSTINCT

Doing the bump

“This year was an experience I will never forget. I not only learned a lot about myself, but a lot about others. The team was great. We all had fun striving for a common goal.”

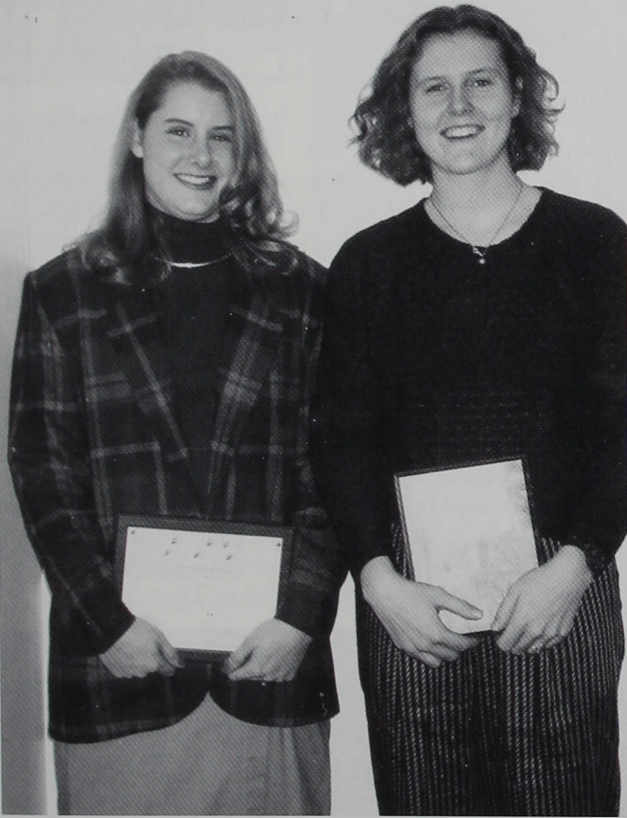

—Christy Bruner,
Freshman

Captains of their ship

Jennifer Johnsen and Amy Stieter stop for a shot to prove that yes, team captains are people, too. These two led the team well, with Jen providing 122 and Amy providing 360 kills for the season.

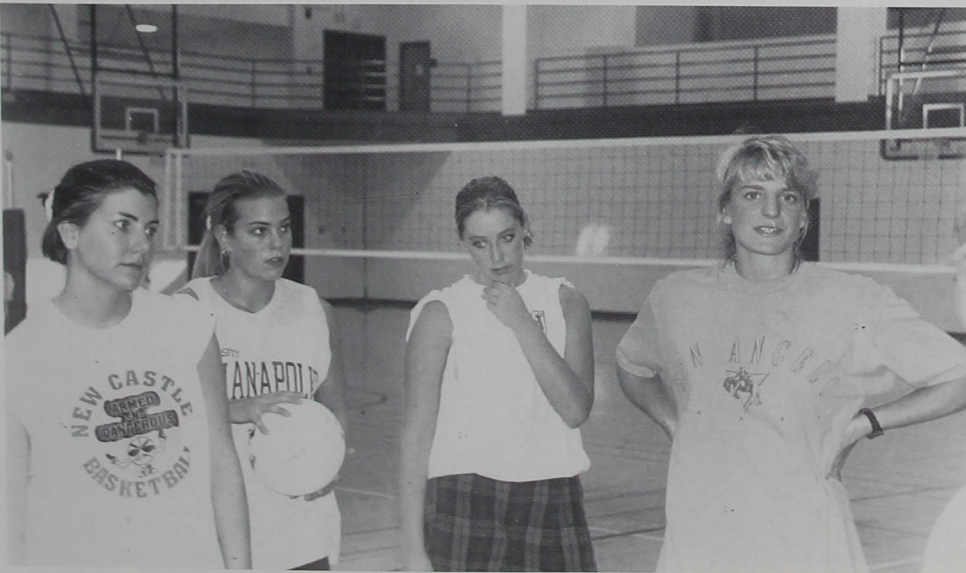

GREYHOUND GREAT

Senior team co-captain Amy Strieter, an accounting major, led the Lady Greyhounds in kills (360), hitting percentage (.246), and service aces (38). As the only senior on the team, Strieter maintained the enthusiasm, leadership, and attitude that helped unify the 1995-96 volleyball team. Amy is a magna cum laude graduate.

You two are the greatest (top left) Freshman Christy Bruner, winner of the Mental Attitude Award and a major in human biology and pre-physical therapy, and Amy Strieter, the team's only senior and winner of the Most Valuable Player award, pose with their plaques.

The Cool Gang (top right) The team waits patiently for the van keys so they can leave on an early morning road trip. No matter how many road trips an athlete takes, each one holds a special memory. Commented the ever-creative Kristi Hayden, "This year's season may not have produced the best record, but it did produce the best of friends. We all had a 'figilijig' of a time."

Better luck next time Paula Miller and Heather Kissel (left) listen to Coach Balka as Erin Miller (middle) looks at the line she should have been on for her last attempted dig. After two successful years coaching at U of I, Balka will concentrate on coaching high school athletes.

"This year was a turning point. We had six starting freshmen and are losing only two seniors, so things look good for next season."

—Ryan Smiley,

GOING FOR THE GOAL

The 1995 men's team was under the leadership of a new coach, Derek Brown, a native of Great Britain. Because of a new coaching style and rigorous practices, they excelled with an 8-10-1 overall record.

The team finished third in the GLVC, defeating top-seeded Lewis for the highest finish in the school's history. In the GLVC, the soccer team ranked fifth in offense with 1.95 goals per game.

Commenting on these accomplishments, Brown said, "Through commitment, dedication, and hard work we were able to set a new school record. Third place is good, but we're aiming for first in the future."

New to the team were freshmen Glenn Flint and Daniel Philpott, also from Great Britain, who contributed to the team's success.

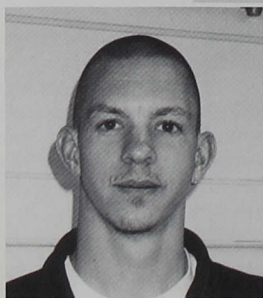

Glenn made a save in the history-making contest against Lewis which kept a game-tying goal from being scored. "The season was like a roller-coaster in terms of performance. Once we came together as a team, we finished on a high by beating top-ranked Lewis," Glenn noted.

Danny, an equally important member of the team, said, "The year was a beginning toward better things to come from this soccer program. Next year, I expect us to be challengers for top place in the conference."

In addition to the rest of the team, these blokes were enthusiastic players who will be assets in the future.

GREYHOUND GREAT

Senior team captain Rich Miotke, a cum laude graduate, led the men's soccer team to their first-ever GLVC playoff victory. The four-year letter winner earned second-team All-GLVC in 1995, marking his third GLVC honor.

Greyhound Kickers

I'll race you

Todd Hissong, a sophomore in human biology and pre-physical therapy, and Jon Thompson, a senior in psychology, move down the field as they practice their footwork.

Suspended reality

Phil Hasier practices ball handling techniques before a game. Phil is a sophomore in the physical therapy assistance program.

GREYHOUND GREAT

Freshman Michelle Olivencia led the women's soccer team to an overall 4-14 record. Michelle's dedication was shown through her speed and incredible field sense.

They give it the boot

"Although it was difficult competing against the top GLVC teams, we did a great job. We can only get better."

—Chris Johnson,
Coach

Kick it!

Freshman Sheri Besso maneuvers the ball and runs downfield in hope of scoring a goal, while her teammates follow to give her an open pass opportunity. Sheri received the MVP award this year.

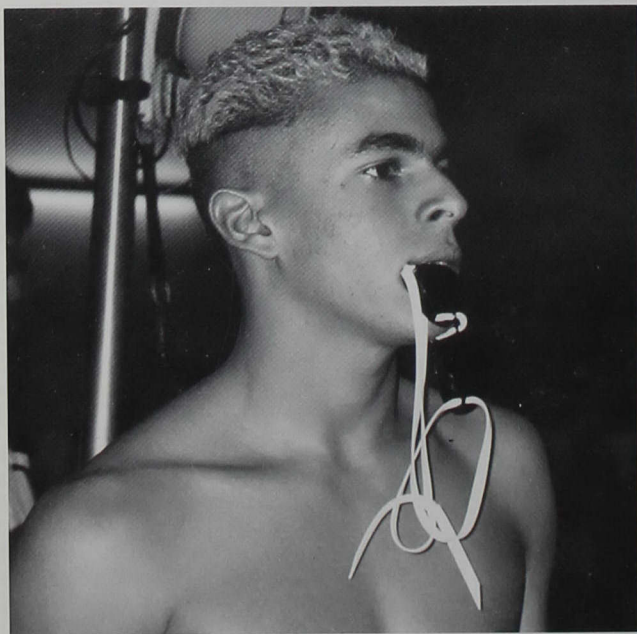

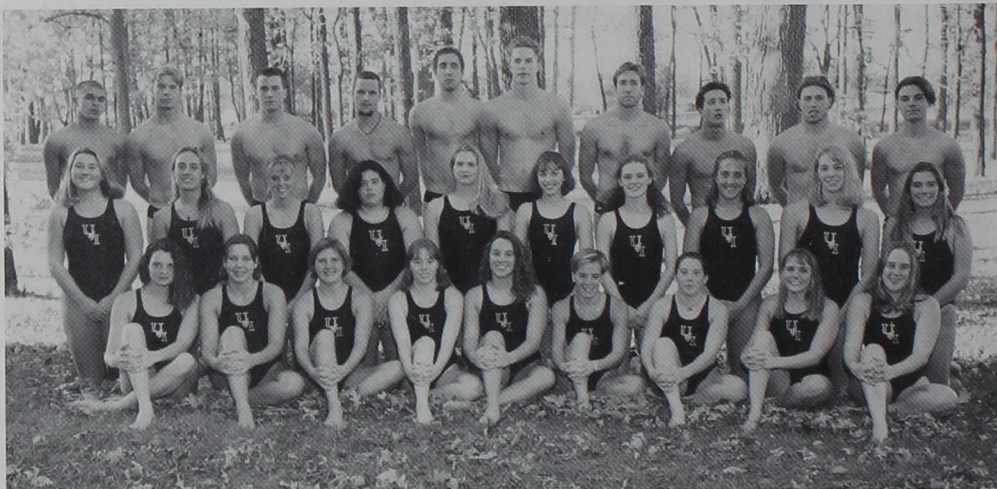

SWIMMING & DIVING

TAKING THE PLUNGE

“One of the reasons I love to dive so much is that I have to work hard, but I have a lot of fun while doing so!”
—Kristi Ohns, Sophomore

Making a splash

Feed me

Wes Farnum is so hungry after practice that he's chewing on his goggles. Wes, a freshman, swims the breast and back strokes.

Breathless

Freshman Mary Percival catches her breath after a race. Mary, a nursing major, raced in the 100 breaststroke and 200 medley relay.

He's buff

Diver Mike Chrapkiewicz, a sophomore in biology and pre-med, looks toward the judges for the start.

When do we eat?

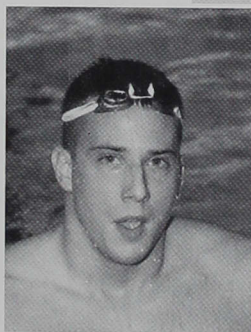

Freshman Bill Yanney and Adam Wisniewski hang out at a picnic for swimmers and divers held at nearby Hanna House while waiting for the food to be served.

GREYHOUND GREATS

Freshman Nikki Close led the Greyhounds to their second consecutive U of I Invitational championship, winning the 100 meter breaststroke (1:11.47), 400 meter individual medley (4:53.30) and the 200 meter butterfly (2:14.35). Nikki, attempting to qualify for the 1996 NCAA II Nationals, competed in a sanctioned time trial in the 200 meter butterfly at Notre Dame.

Sophomore Chad Brandenburg set a new school record by winning the 500 freestyle with a time of 4:40.80 at the Mideast Classic. Chad was an enthusiastic swimmer who was voted MVP by his teammates.

Let's get this meet started

Sara Wallace and Kristi Ohns fill out diving sheets before a meet. Sara, a senior in human biology and athletic training, is an All-American NCAA II senior. Sophomore Kristi is majoring in nursing.

"My favorite memory this season was the Transylvania Invitational. We had a bad meet overall, but there were some good individual swims."

—Adam Wisniewski, Sophomore

WRESTLING

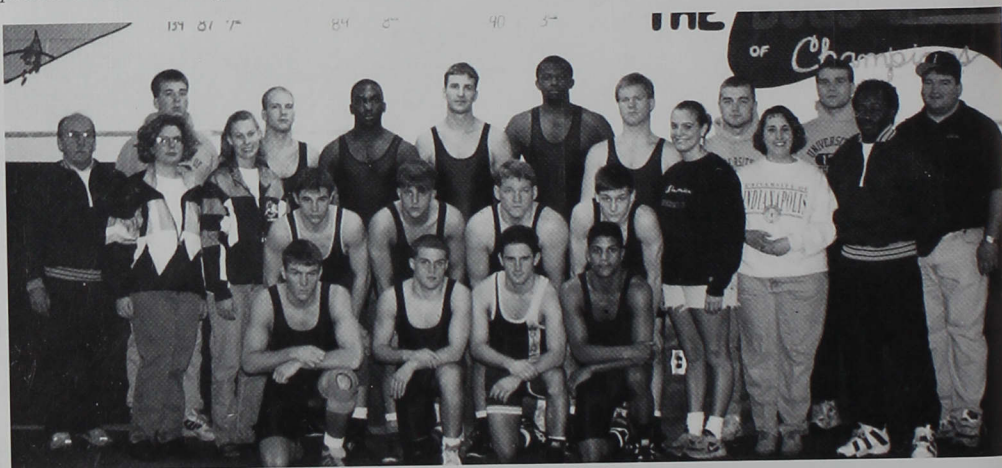

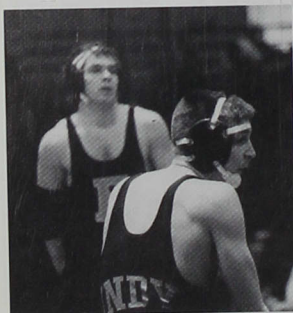

A SHOW OF STRENGTH

Don't try to put them on hold

What should I do, coach?

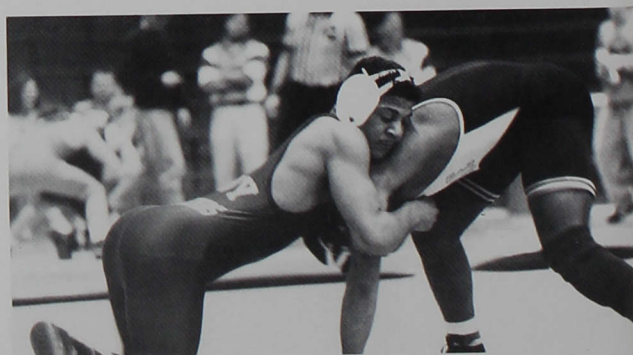

Richard VanOsdol looks toward the bench for advice from Coach Wetherald. Richard, a sophomore majoring in business, is a two-time letter winner in his weight class of 134.

GREYHOUND GREAT

Sophomore Deon Brimmage, an NCAA II All-American, won the Little State championship in the 167-pound weight class. Ranked sixth in the pre-season rankings of the NCAA Division II Wrestling Coaches Association, he lived up to these rankings. Deon also had impressive performances against the University of Central Oklahoma and at the Greyhound Classic.

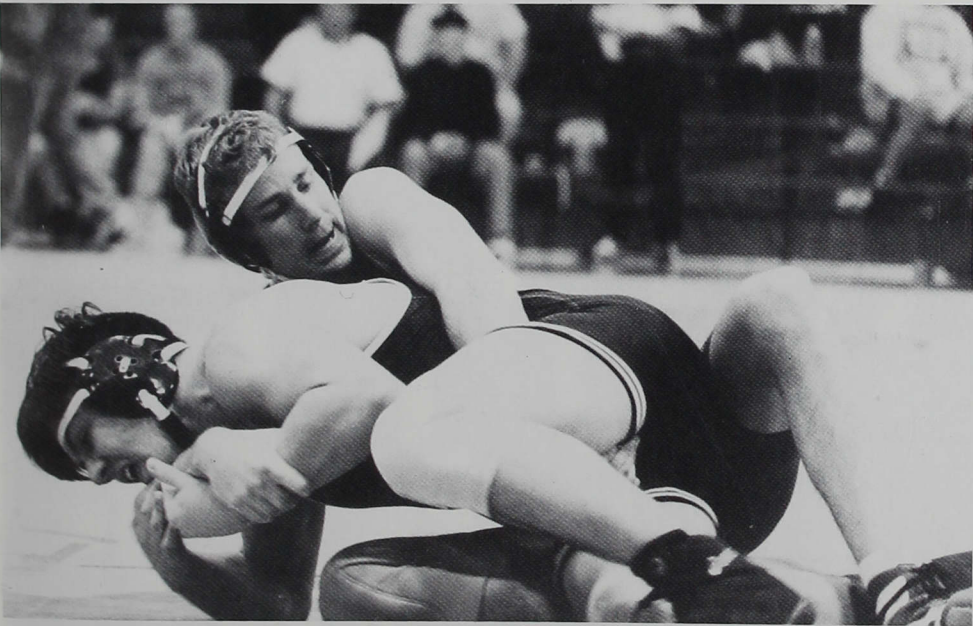

Asleep at the wheel?

Chad Red, a sophomore, may look like he's asleep, but his wheels are turning. Chad, who's majoring in physical education, is in the 126 weight class and has been known to pin an opponent in 18 seconds.

Will you cooperate?

Chadd Rogers, a junior in law enforcement and anthropology, just wants to pin this opponent. Chadd, one of the team's tallest wrestlers, competed in the 158 weight class.

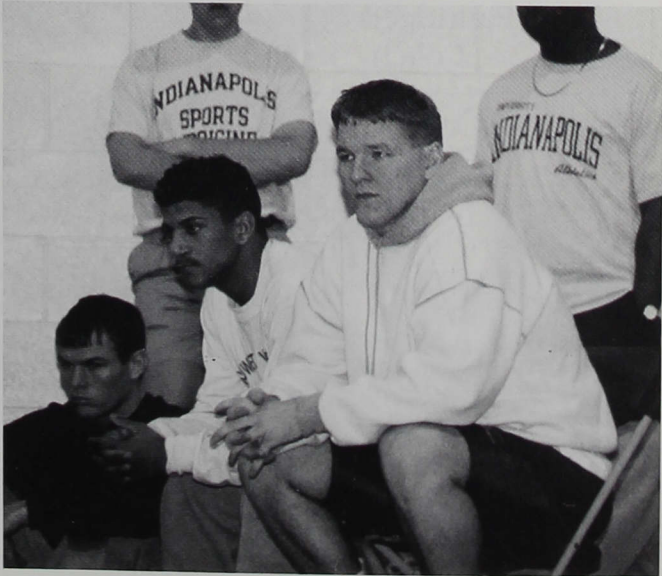

Determination
John Frysinger, a junior, is determined to take this opponent down.

Giving it 110 percent
Deon Brimmage is giving 110 percent in this match. He is majoring in business administration and computer information systems.

Keeping an eye on the action
Sophomore Marty Mills, freshman Chad Red, and sophomore Richard Neal watch their fellow wrestlers as they mentally prepare themselves for their own matches.

"We compete very well against Division I teams. Eighteen of our 54 meets have been with schools like Kent and Purdue. We've also kept a winning record for ten years."

—Ken Partridge,
Coach

GOLF

AT THE FOREFRONT

They're real swingers

GREYHOUND GREAT

Senior NCAA II All-American Chad Hilderbrand placed 11th of 77 in the 13-team Eastern Illinois Invitational. Chad tied for medalist honors in the 62-player IUPUI Invitational with a one-under-par 71, and he tied for fifth at 225 in the GLVC tournament. Because of his dedication and hard work, Chad has had an impressive four-year golf career.

A hole in one?

Jason Christy, a senior, gets outside for some practice. Jason, like others on the team, spent many hours trying to improve his game.

Hurry up and wait
Tera Deckard (right), a freshman in communication studies, waits with her Franklin College opponent to get on the green and conclude their golf match.

GREYHOUND GREAT

Freshman Tera Deckard led the team to victory in the Illinois State Invitational by placing 30th in the 90-player field. At the Franklin College Fall Festival, Tera finished 13th with a score of 85. The team finished the season with fifth place at the Tri-State Lady Thunder Fall Classic, where Tera was second overall with a two-round score of 163.

Sink that putt
Freshman duffer Erin McGraw, a major in psychology and pre-occupational therapy, concentrates on sinking the putt. Erin carded an 86, good for 16th place at Franklin's Fall Festival.

On a par with the best
Row one: Jennifer Derringer, Coach Larry Bledsoe, Stacey Conk. Row two: Amber Griffey, Monica Scott, Tera Deckard, Erin McGraw.

"We really have a quality program, and any support we can get is appreciated."

—Larry Bledsoe,
Coach

TENNIS

LOVING EVERY MINUTE

GREYHOUND GREAT

Senior Steve Klei, a law enforcement major, led the champion-bound Greyhounds to victory against Lewis. He was ranked 32nd in singles in this year's NCAA II Midwest Region fall rankings. Steve, who played both singles and doubles, was a major factor in the team's success for the past four years.

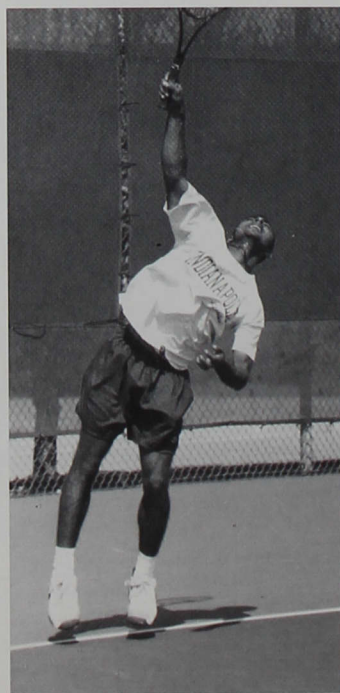

They're aces

GREYHOUND GREAT

Senior captain Shelly Kindig, a sports medicine major, led her team to a runner-up finish in the GLVC. Shelly posted an 11-8 mark at #1 singles to earn All-GLVC recognition for the third time in her Greyhound career. Shelly, winner of the team's MVP award, had a win/loss record of 8-4 with her doubles partner Jacquie Duvall.

She's a winner
Mandy Updegraff, a sophomore from San Diego who's majoring in psychology, won the team's mental attitude award.

BASKETBALL

HEY MAN, NICE SHOT

"Although this was my last trip around, I will look back and be proud of the '96 Greyhound team."

—Kyle Shirk, Senior

Led by Coach Royce Waltman, 1995–96 GLVC Conference Coach of the Year, the team finished with an impressive 20–9 record.

Pre-season goals were making the NCAA tournament and competing for a conference title, and the six seniors—Perrell Lucas, Kyle Shirk, Noi Chay, Daniel Johnson, Chad Pate, and Michael Brooks—had high expectations.

Despite numerous injuries, the players made their first-ever appearance at the NCAA Division II tournament in Evansville.

The season highlight was defeating the defending national champions, University of Southern Indiana, on the home court. Attendance was overwhelming and, with the crowd on its feet, the team pushed through the last seconds and defeated USI.

As the buzzer sounded, the crowd rushed the court to congratulate the team. Explained Coach Waltman, "The number one thing the players enjoy is student involvement and support at our home games. These guys really enjoy getting reactions from their friends and classmates who are in the crowd."

School spirit and support made for exciting basketball, and the team hopes such enthusiasm will continue. Added Junior David Wiese, "The season was fun and we accomplished a lot. I'll miss the seniors, but I'm already looking forward to next year."

There's one now
Senior Chad Pate looks down court to find an open teammate. Chad, a physical education teaching major, hit eight out of eight free throws against Wisconsin-Parkside.

Row two: Trainer Ned Shannon, Caleb Dimmich, Eric Acton, David Wiese, Mike Deemer, Bryan Coyne, Bart Holubar, Terry McBryde, Andy Weaver, Assistant Coach Steve Coffman.

GREYHOUND GREATS

Senior "swing man" Daniel Johnson was a versatile player. With his ability to play three different positions, Daniel was a leader in steals and had a strong 33 minutes against NKU and North Alabama. Recipient of the team's Kelso Reid Mental Attitude Award, he is recognized for his selflessness and teamwork.

Senior NCAA II All-American Perrell Lucas led the Greyhounds in scoring, finishing the season with over 16,000 career points. The 6' guard was second in three-point accuracy for league contests. Perrell, a four-year starter, had arthroscopic surgery on his knee and, although it kept him out of a few games, he returned to play against USL.

Nothin' but net

Sophomore forward Bart Holubar sinks a shot. Bart scored 15 points in 16 minutes at the NKU game.

GREYHOUND GREAT

Senior NCAA II All-American candidate Ann Hensley completed a stellar four-year career. Ann owns three of the top 11 season scoring totals in Lady Greyhound history, and she finished her career by becoming the all-time leading scorer with 1,650 points. She is also the first Lady Greyhound ever to make first team All-GLVC for three consecutive years. Ann is both a hard worker and a good athlete. She led the team by example and, according to her teammates, was the heart of the team.

Heather Braniff lifts weights as Wendy Westforth, Allison Tindall, and Jessica Spitznogle spot her. The Lady Greyhounds lift weights throughout the season.

CROSS COUNTRY

GOING THE EXTRA MILE

GREYHOUND GREAT

Senior team captain Anthony "Weed" Hibbs led the Greyhounds to a 52-26 overall record, including a fourth-place finish in the GLVC. He placed 19th at the Great Lakes Regional, just missing NCAA II national qualifications. Weed, who's majoring in physical education teaching, has been the team's MVP for three consecutive years.

Setting the pace

Flyin' high

Junior NCAA II All-American Rod Coleman is flying high during this long jump. Rod also triple jumps for the team.

GREYHOUND GREAT

Senior Bryan Evans finished second in the NCAA Division II men's indoor track division in the 35-pound weight throw with a 1996 best of 57'2". All-American Evans threw a school record of 61'4" in the weight throw during the outdoor season. At Little State, he placed first in discus (162'1") and hammer throw (166'2"), second in shot put (47'6.75"), and third in the javelin throw (157'10"). In the GLVC meet, Evans placed second in the hammer throw and shot put and first in discus.

"Everyone worked hard to reach their goals, and some went further than they thought they could, both in time and distance. By putting this all together, we had a great team, not only in terms of wins, but also in the camaraderie among us."

—Jaime Jackson,
Freshman

Infielder Kendall McKinnis, second-baser Mandie Hawkins, and outfielder Sarah Volmerding take a break between plays. Friendship and support for each player was key for the team's success. Mandie was one of six seniors—including Amy Strieter, Pam Givens, Tasha Lewis, Christy Cothron, and Amy Heath—who provided strong team leadership, also important for a successful season.

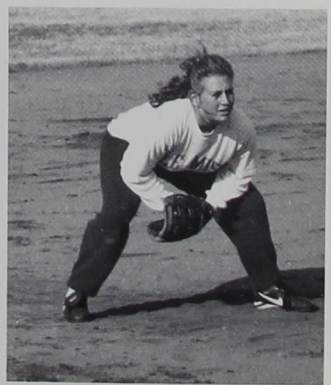

Holy cow!
Pitcher Stephanie Bogumil, a junior majoring in nursing, and outfielder Renea Houston, a sophomore in chemistry, watch as the batter strikes out.

GREYHOUND GREATS

Seniors Amy Strieter and Tasha Lewis led the team to a season record of 28 wins—the most by any U of I athletic team! Center-fielder Strieter is ranked fifth in batting average (.391) and first in stolen bases (37). Pitcher Lewis ranks sixth in earned run average (1.01), third in strikeouts per seven innings (6.03), and fourth in victories (14).

I'm ready for you, batter
Pam Givens, a psychology major, plays third base. Said the magna cum laude grad, "This year's team consisted of a variety of individuals blessed with different abilities who were full of potential. We just pulled together to create a record-setting team."

Who had to count those suckers?

To raise money for travel expenses, the men's basketball team sponsored a free throw shoot as a fundraiser in October. Each player shot 1,000 free throws and solicited pledges based upon the number of actual baskets made. Prankster Cassie Hall, Director for Parent & Alumni Relations, ended up owing $116.72, which she decided to pay with 11,672 pennies. Coach Waltman and his players were a bit surprised, to say the least.

C'mon, boys!

These two refs go head to head during a little discussion over a baseball play.

Get social! ISG sponsors

Indianapolis Student Government, or ISG, is dedicated to making the college experience a good one for every student at the University of Indianapolis.

One way ISG achieves this goal is by sponsoring social activities to help students get to know each other outside of classes.

ISG sponsors many events throughout the year, including the annual Winter Formal, which provides students with a romantic evening of fun and dancing; Mardi Gras, the university's own Fat Tuesday celebration; and Hog Wild Weekend, a fun-filled weekend before the start of classes each year. ISG also works with other campus organizations, such as RHA, to coordinate activities.

ISG sponsors trips to see the Pacers, the Indianapolis Ice, and the Indians in action, and brings local bands like Birdmen of Alcatraz and The Why Store to campus for concerts.

ISG helps plan and sponsor Cyclerama Weekend, Brown County Day, the football and basketball Homecoming celebrations, and the annual Easter Egg Hunt for children of students, faculty, and staff. A movie night was also sponsored this year.

The organization sponsored a needy family in December, providing toys, clothing, and a gift certificate to a grocery.

Said ISG member Nancy Werne, a senior, "By being a part of ISG, I feel that I've made a contribution to our effort to achieve more school spirit at U of I."

ISG officers and members are selected by an election process held at the beginning of each school year. To be eligible for ISG membership, students must have a GPA of 2.3 and pass an e-mail test.

Interested students can fill out petitions available at the ISG office. Elections are held each year, with members of the student body voting to select their class representatives.

For more information, students are encouraged to stop by the ISG office or contact an ISG member.

On special occasions throughout the year, these 16 students serve as guides and greeters, extending a special University of Indianapolis welcome to visitors and guests.

Assisting President Lantz with diplomatic duties at Family Day, Lugar Day, and other special events, these students often communicate with visitors about university programs and policies.

Presidential Assistants also perform important internal functions, such as organizing graduates according to degree conferred for smoothly flowing Commencement exercises.

Being named a Presidential Assistant is an honor. Explained Omar Farmer, "Students selected to be Presidential Assistants must be nominated by a committee of faculty and staff."

RHA's goal is to improve quality of dorm life

Representing students who reside in Cravens, New, North, and Warren Halls, the Residence Hall Association (RHA) strives to maintain and improve living conditions in all four dormitories.

RHA members are active promoters of social activities between residence halls as well as residential and commuter students.

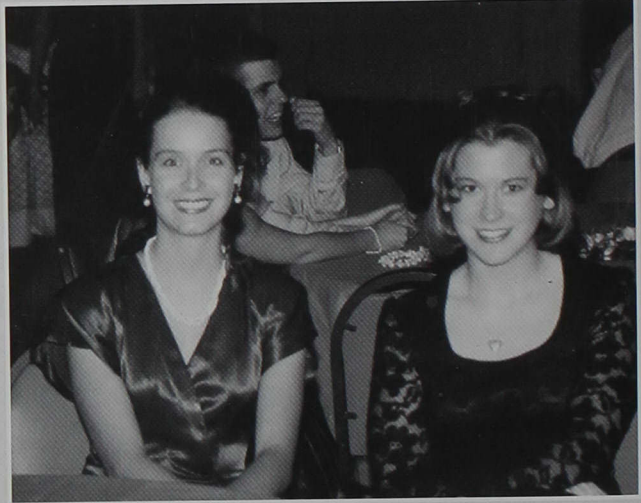

The group is an integral part of the university, participating in campus activities like Mardi Gras, where RHA sponsors a game booth; sponsoring the Mid-Semester Snack Break, which provides free food and a way to blow off steam before mid-term exams; and organizing the Spring Formal.

According to member Aaron McClure, however, the Residence Hall Association's main goal is to "make improvements to the residence halls to ensure a better standard of living for those students who call them home."

academics?

—RON WALTON, SOPHOMORE, COMMUNICATIONS

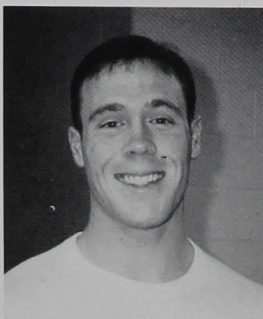

"Being academically successful involves more than making good grades—for me, it's included long hours of hard work, sacrifice, and enduring when I felt like giving up. What makes you successful is achieving a balance between school and those things in life that are important to you and make you who you are."

Christina Coomer
Junior, psychology

"The most important aspect of college is time management. If you know how to use your time wisely, you can do almost anything you want and still have time to study and do well in classes."

Lisa Kirkpatrick
Senior, chemistry

"If you want to succeed academically, then you need to set that as your top priority. There will be times when sacrifices need to be made in order to achieve your goals. But in the end, the hard work you've devoted to studying will all be worth it."

learning the ropes

Last year, the university's long-time Convocation program underwent a major reformation, making way for a new program called New Student Experience, or NSE.

"Freshmen come to the university as they are leaving high school and home for the first time. NSE helps them avoid potential problems by concentrating on how to adjust," said Dr. Mary Beth Bagg, NSE coordinator.

The freshman class was divided into 23 groups headed by 27 faculty and administrative facilitators. According to Bagg, "Facilitators are free to develop their individual groups with a unique flair of their own."

NSE classes addressed everything from test-taking skills to interpersonal relationships with roommates and professors.

Checkers the Clown

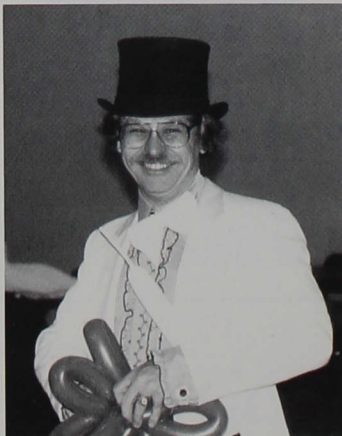

Business professor Butch Fennema puts his clowning talents to work at the NSE year-end party. He was one of several faculty facilitators for NSE this year.

Close friends

Are you experienced?

Tim Skiver, Greg Rakestraw, Brandon Chizum, and Jennifer Suba cut loose at the end-of-semester NSE party. Tim, Greg, and Suba were NSE student facilitators.

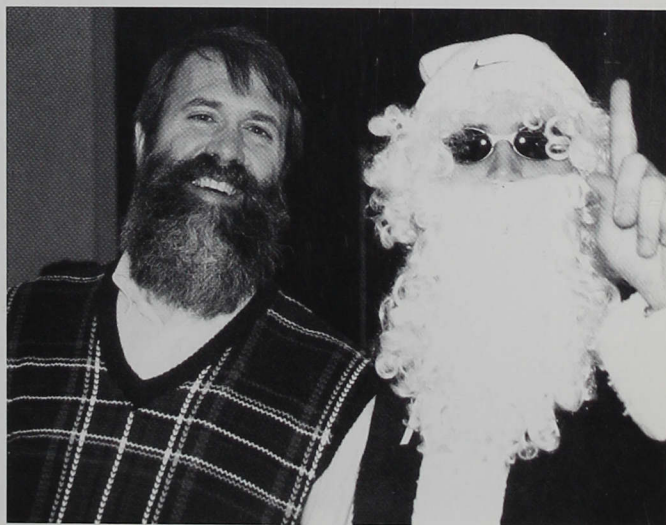

Twister girl

Kat Hendrix plays Twister at an NSE event. Kat was one of several students who helped incoming freshmen have an easy transition into college by making themselves available to students with problems or questions.

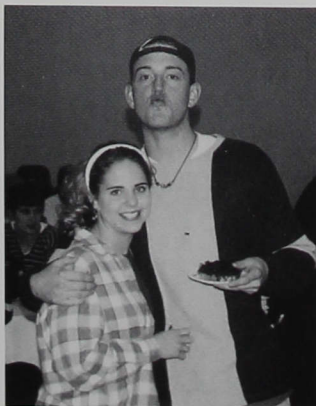

Santa Phil

Kissy face

Achieving common goals

James Gray takes part in a classroom activity called "bafi-bafi." The exercise, part of Dr. Fennema's Group Dynamics class, helps students learn that groups can achieve common goals despite cultural differences.

It's all in the strategy

Leonard VanSlyke, a senior in the School of Business, talks about foreign business strategies during a classroom discussion.

Don't mind me

Dr. Robin Livesay, Dean of the School of Business, spends time in the classroom, observing faculty and students.

Working well with others

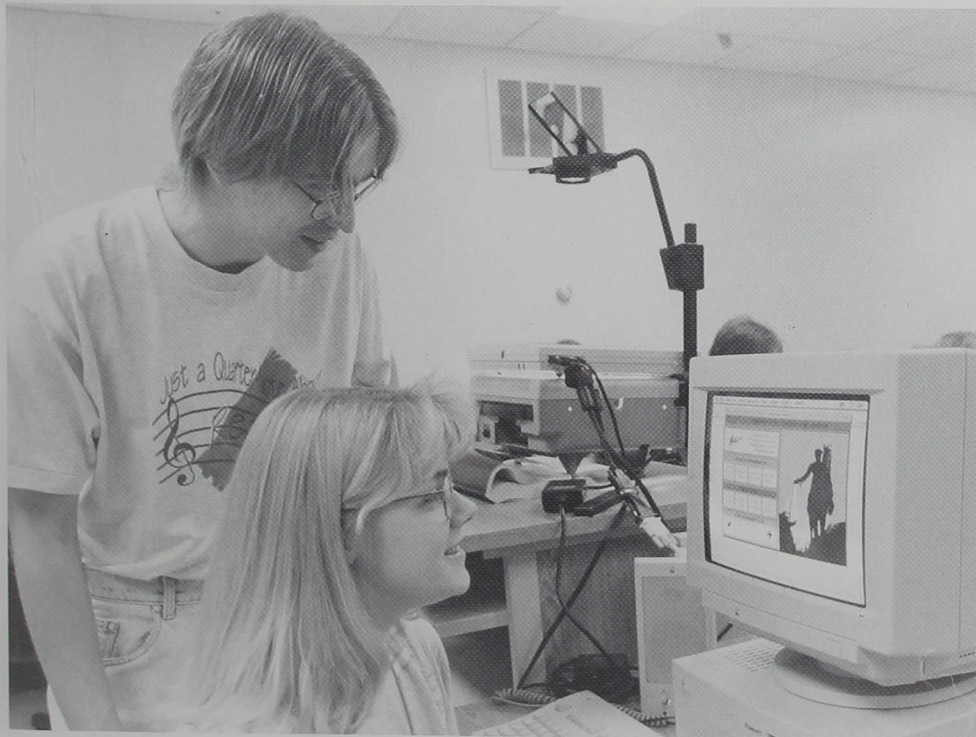

Sophomore Jamey Oser gives a presentation. Jamey and his group were charged with teaching a lesson on successfully working with people from different cultures. The class also teaches students to apply critical thinking skills in group situations.

taking care of business

Collaborators

Sophomore Mark Church collaborates with education major Amber Swihart on a multimedia project for IT-320. The class is part of the School of Education's effort to help future teachers effectively use computers in the classroom.

Book worms

Senior Matthew Rademacher guides a young student through a reading activity during his student teaching. The experience helps future teachers like Matthew get "real world" insight that can't be found in a college classroom.

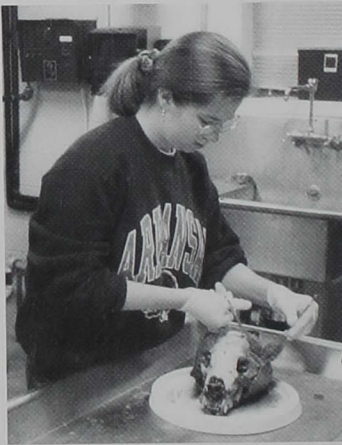

All aboard!

This education class takes a field trip to observe teachers in the classroom and get hands-on experience with elementary students. The most important field experience comes from student teaching during a student's senior year.

Physical therapy students watch as Tricia Gawlik has her lung volume tested at the Nursing Center spirometry booth during the health fair.

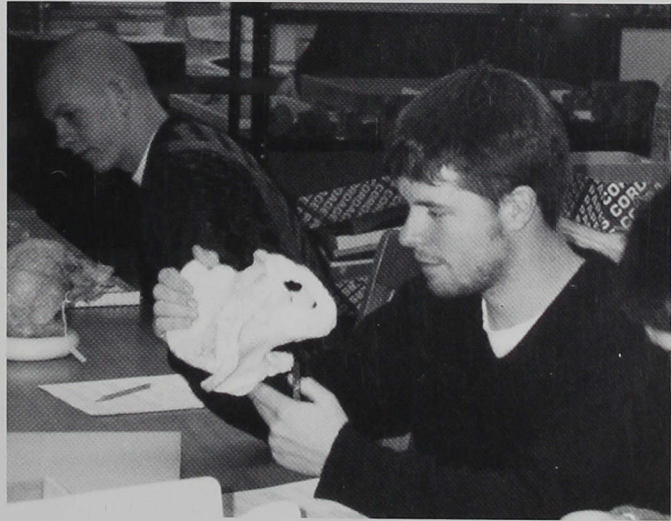

Forensic anthropology

Alyson Davis and Nicole Bulla analyze skeletal remains for their semester project in skeletal biology. The two were charged with cataloging the remains and whatever information could be deduced from them. Could there have been foul play?

Sexing the pelvis

This isn't what you think! Skeletal biology student Jason Sanders looks at a male and a female pelvis to note the differences between them and determine which is which.

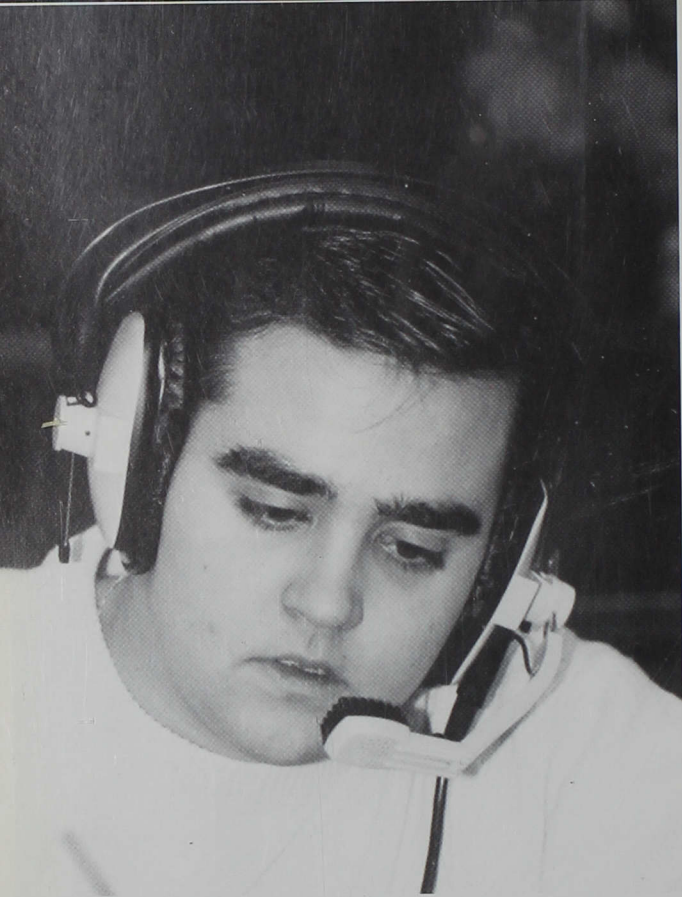

¿Como está usted?

Dr. Dan Briere teaches his Spanish 202 class the nuances of the language. Coursework in languages other than English is required for all students and learning Spanish is a popular way to fulfill the requirement.

Fill 'er up

Kris Bauerle fills a hypodermic with solution to practice giving shots in her nursing lab. Labs, as well as clinical experience, teach future nurses the specialized skills they'll need to pass their state boards.

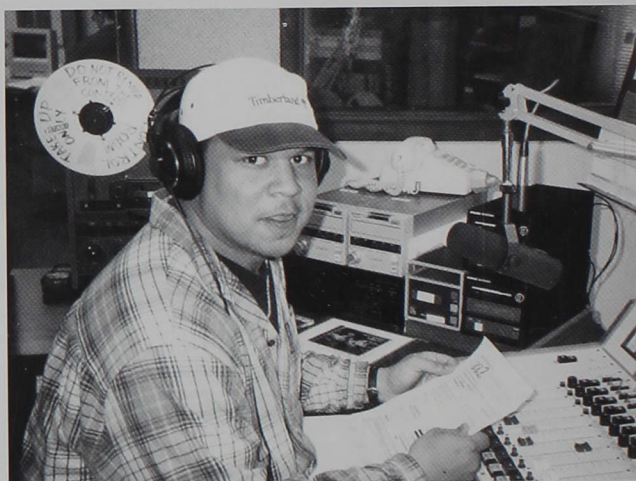

Move over, Dicky V.

WICR-FM Sports Director Mack Howell comments on a Greyhound basketball game. Commentary on Greyhound sporting events allows students to catch games they may not otherwise attend. WICR provides commentary on more than 70 Greyhound games each year.

Tune in and win

Fred Crawford gets ready to give away tickets to a local jazz club as part of a promotion for the station. WICR often gives away items like t-shirts and tickets to local events.

At the controls

Freshman Shannon Stanley and senior Bill Hyden keep an eye on the sound board for signs of problems. WICR is primarily managed by students seven days a week.

Familiar voice

Greg Rakestraw interviews Assistant Basketball Coach Todd Sturgeon. WICR is the "Voice of the Greyhounds," and Rakestraw was one of several students who provided play-by-play action for football, basketball, and baseball games.

This year WICR became a more powerful voice for the University of Indianapolis.

The station, managed by students and faculty in the Communications Department, experienced a major wattage increase from 2,500 to 5,000 watts.

Approved by the FCC in early February, the increase allows WICR to serve a population of 1,170,412, said station manager Ed Roehling.

The signal is broadcast from a 1,000-foot WRTV tower at 79th and Township Line Road, and most campus listeners were previously unable to get a clear signal because of its physical distance from campus. The increase in wattage now allows the entire campus to receive the signal clearly.

WICR programming includes jazz and classical music, live BBC and NPR broadcasts, news, live interviews, and talk shows.

Talk radio

Jeff Stein moderates a roundtable discussion with students and a variety of guests on Borderline. The program, broadcast from 4-5 a.m. each Monday, addresses topics ranging from current events and politics to music and pop culture.

On the air

Bill Hyden is on the air during a home basketball game. Although Bill broadcasts during the basketball season, when it's time for baseball he's out on the field making the plays that are broadcasting news.

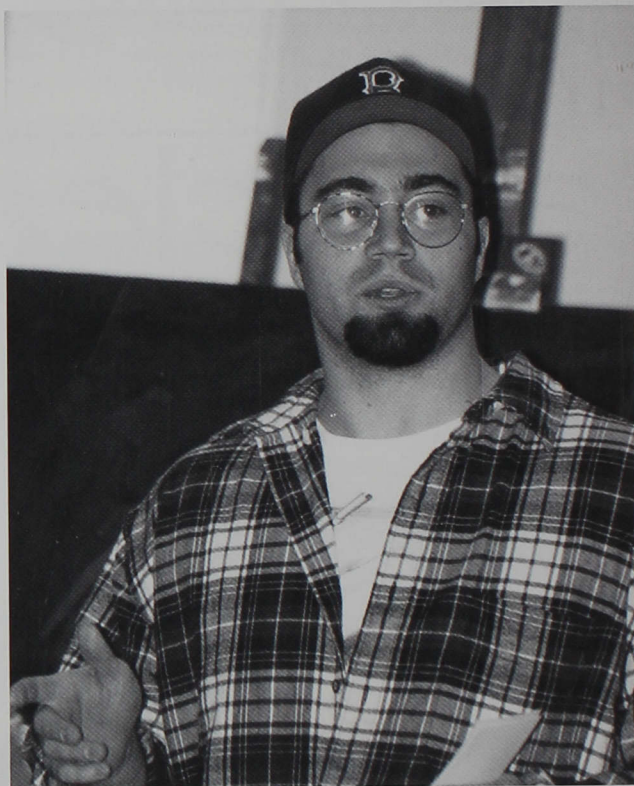

Building by hand

Freshman Bryan Miller works on a ceramics project. The course emphasized basic techniques such as hand-building and firing the kiln.

An honorable guy

Matt Billings gives a presentation for his art honors project. Matt, a senior, graduated cum laude with distinction.

Have brush will travel

Nausheen Raees doesn't need an easel to put the finishing touches on this project for her painting class. The course emphasized exploring technical aspects and compositional techniques in painting.

3D art

Junior Cara Gumpert saws off the end of a board for her sculpture, part of an assignment to create a three-dimensional art form.

Distinctly different

Senior Shelby Scott, who graduated summa cum laude with distinction, discusses her honors art project.

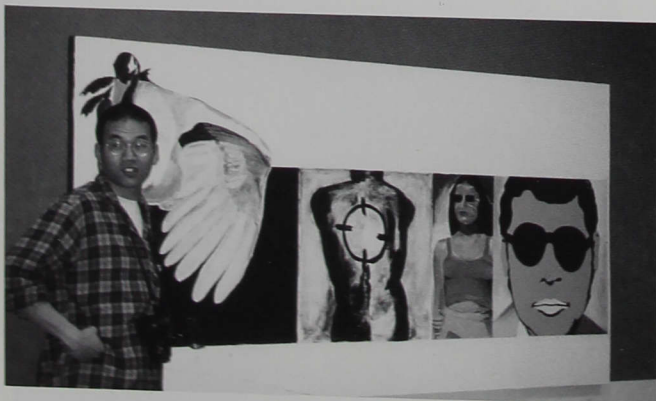

She's got designs

On exhibit

Sophomore art major Ernie Hahn stands by one of his pieces that appeared in a student art exhibition in Ransburg Gallery. Ernie and visiting faculty member Suzanne Woods co-organized the exhibit, which ran for two weeks in March. Students who created art during the past two years were invited to submit up to three pieces for consideration in the exhibit.

The needle and the damage done
Freshman Brian Clutter puts the finishing touches on his latest painting, which reflects his unique style.

A game of cat and mouse
Sophomore Mathew Porter uses the mouse to finish a design project on the computer. A commercial art major, Mathew works on the Macintosh to learn a variety of graphic design and typographic techniques.

Imagine
Freshman Megan Hemmick completes an assignment for her drawing class. The course emphasizes drawing from the human figure, still lifes, nature, and imagination.

Jess Bader forms a ceramic vase. One of her ceramic pieces was part of the student exhibit displayed in Ransburg Gallery.

Just a bubble off plumb?

Junior art major Chuck Rankin levels his sculpture. Art students learn about the place of art in society, as well as how to apply basic design principles in their work.

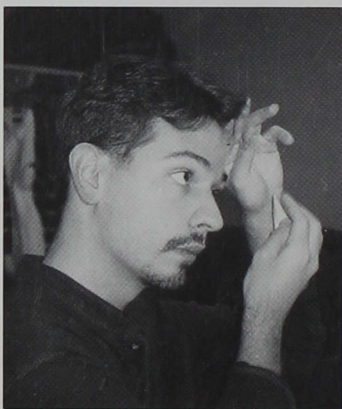

It's all in the attitude

all the world's a stage

Rejection sucks

Ryan Redmon gets made up for the evening performance of Twelfth Night. Ryan played the noble Count Orsino, who was rejected by the wealthy Olivia in favor of Cesario, a handsome commoner.

Feste the fool

Jeffrey Barnes, a sophomore, plays Feste in the Theatre Department's production of Twelfth Night. Jeffrey was a member of the honor cast, whose members are required to have a GPA of B or higher.

At your service

Marvin Pavlov, Stefanie Moser, and Kelly Guthridge wait for their cue during Twelfth Night rehearsals. The three played servants of Count Orsino and Olivia.

Double exposure

Angi Corn, a sophomore, gets ready for the bright lights of the stage. Angie is a member of the Theatre Department's honor cast.

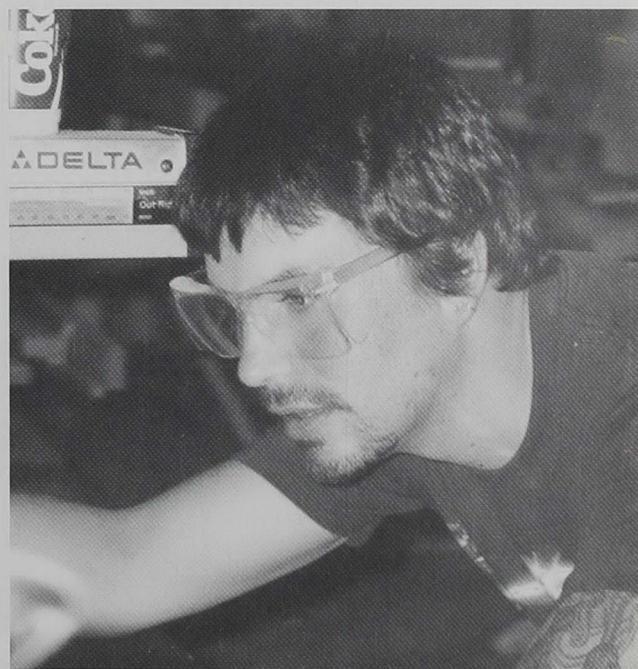

Thanks a lot, mom

Alumna Lucy Fields (Class of 1991) plays the nagging mother of a daughter who's recovering from a nervous breakdown in a Studio Theatre production of 'dentity Crisis.

Making a scene

Jason Bostwick, member of Alpha Psi Omega national honorary theatre fraternity, makes scenery for Twelfth Night. Jason played Malvolio, who wants to marry Olivia for her wealth and social position.

The trials of a handmaid
Renée Ballard, a freshman, is captured before the start of dress rehearsals for Twelfth Night.

Hair apparent

Amber Martin dresses Jennifer Dixon's hair before the Studio Theatre's presentation of Why Do We Laugh? Amber plays the character of Meredith at age six, while Jennifer plays the same character at age 67.

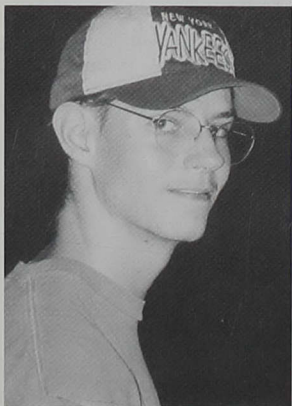

Thespians in the making

Freshman Krista Hoyt and sophomore Christie Beckmann were captured backstage during The Importance of Being Earnest. Christie was props manager for the production.

Jack of all trades

Freshman Chris Steele does electrical work during the initial stages of a Studio Theatre production. Chris not only worked on scenery and set-up, but acted as Sebastian in Twelfth Night.

A merry man

Russell McGee, freshman, was scenic artist on the set of The Importance of Being Earnest. He also acted in the production as Merriman the butler. Russell plans to pursue a career in the film industry.

Heart and soul

Sophomore Amber Martin and junior Jenni White cut loose after a successful run of Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? Both played major roles in the production, with Amber acting as stage manager and Jenni playing the lead role of Martha, her biggest acting challenge to date.

You rang?

Barry McFarlane, a freshman, portrays Lane the manservant in The Importance of Being Earnest. Barry was active in several theatre productions this year and worked in capacities ranging from actor to master carpenter and shop manager.

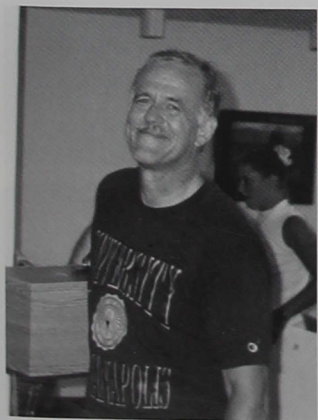

"It is through art . . . that we can shield ourselves from the sordid perils of actual existence."

After studying theatre for three years, junior Jeffrey Barnes is likely to agree with this sentiment, attributed to Oscar Wilde, the author of The Importance of Being Earnest. Jeffrey is shown playing the role of John Worthing in the dinner theatre production.

Miss Prism

Freshman Amy Pizarek plays Miss Prism, the governess, in The Importance of Being Earnest. Amy is a member of the ACT Out ensemble of the American Cabaret Theatre in Indianapolis. She is this year's winner of the Freshman Award for Academic Excellence in Theatre.

Easy chair

Jim Ream, chair of the Theatre Department, always manages to smile despite a busy schedule of teaching and managing several theatre productions each year.

What's in a name?

Freshman Jennifer Agan plays the shallow Gwendolyn Fairfax, who rejects Jack as a potential suitor because of his common name, in The Importance of Being Earnest. This year, Jen also played Madeline in The Wooden Pear and co-wrote a studio project titled The Sin of Justification with Alissa Haganman.

Exit stage right

Brad Wright, producer and director of Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?, goes over stage set-up with Amber Martin, who was stage manager for the play.

Slides rule

Studio Jazz Ensemble members Jeff Brown, Darin Wolfe, and Chris Rodenbeck play their slide trombones on Duke Ellington's Don't Get Around Much Anymore. The group, directed by Harry Miedema, gave two free concerts for students and the surrounding community.

Take a bite outta crime

Jake Fetherolf plays a policeman searching for an escaped criminal in the student production of The Old Maid and the Thief. The opera tells the story of two women who fall in love with a thief, and their subsequent attempt to hide him from the rest of the town.

Bugle boys (bottom)

Pep Band members Stephen Day and Joey England practice the National Anthem before the last football game of the year. The band consists of students with the desire to share their school spirit musically.

Rhythm section

African Drum Ensemble members Jeremy Crumbaugh, December Brown, Quincy Owens, Christina Miller, Amy Pizarek, and Michelle Stewart await director Art Reiner's cue. The African Drum Ensemble includes a large number of non-music majors among its members.

Crimson tide

Members of Crimson Express pose before their fall concert. The group's repertoire included musical styles as diverse as George Gershwin, Reba McIntyre, Van Morrison, and Kool and The Gang. Members of Crimson Express included: Mandy Apple, Heather Ault, Leslie Carter, Lenae Chandler, Mark Church, Angi Corn, Mandy Cunningham, Jake Fetherolf, Ian Fleming, Andy Kocher, Stephanie Lishewski, Amy Lee, Trena Lull, Scott McKinney, Renee Mitchell, Amber Moore, Craig Moore, and Ron Popp.

All they wanted was the sax

Mark Radway and Scott Luttrell perform in the Studio Jazz Ensemble fall concert. The ensemble often features guest performers like Mark in order to offer a rich diversity of musical talent. Other members of the ensemble this year included: Kathy Boomershine, Mandi Larrabee, Lance Duncan, Bill Tongate, Scott Hobson, Joey England, Michelle Horn, Kevin Siminski, Chad Barton, D. Chris Rodenbeck, Darin Wolfe, Jeffrey Brown, Ed Holeman, Ray DeCamp, Fred Withrow, Ann Sombun, Jo Ellen Manship, Frank Stean, Eric Davis, and Brad Farley.

"Say it ain't so

Laetitia (Jaye Mooney) and Miss Todd (Betty Andrews) discover the man they are both in love with is an escaped criminal. Student opera productions this year also included A Game of Chance.

Just put your lips together and blow

Junior Elaine Terry, recognized at the Honors Convo for her musical performance skills, and summa cum laude graduate Jodi Sowers practice in preparation for the spring concert.

They hear bells

These members of the Handbell Ensemble ring their respective bells in perfect harmony. Membership in the ensemble this year included: Timothy Beasley, Margaret Campbell, Elizabeth Dinnage, Christina Jones, Marlisa Kemerly, Mandi Larrabee, Marjorie Lindsey, Gertrude Littleton, Lauri Miller, Amy Lynn, Sarah Stultz, and Kimberly Watts.

A note from the editor

—Valerie Leis

When advisor Susan Cockerill called and asked if I'd be interested in heading The Oracle staff, I knew I'd be in for a challenge because a large portion of the student body had become apathetic about the yearbook. I also knew the entire staff would have to work really hard to produce a good book and keep The Oracle alive.

I believe we accomplished that. It was ten times the challenge I thought it was going to be, but I feel that this book keeps the tradition that it was intended to keep—to record the history of the 1995–96 year at the University of Indianapolis.

While we didn't want to be confined by trying to fit all the material to an all-encompassing theme, we decided to call this book "Reading Between the Lines," and we've loosely carried out this theme on the cover and division pages.

Because the year was special to different people in different ways, we chose a theme to provide students with a means to read between the lines, so to speak, and remember the people and events that made it special for each of them.

This is one reason I've been involved with six yearbooks throughout high school and college—not for the satisfaction I feel when students open the book for the first time, but for the feeling it will give them ten years later, when they come across it on a shelf or in the attic and the memories come flooding back.

We were fortunate this year to have the opportunity to work with many fine students, faculty and staff, and the book would not have been possible without their help.

Susan and I both give our thanks to the hard-working staff of The Oracle for not giving up, despite many hours of work and frustration. I give my personal thanks to Dan Strunk for all his patience when I needed to vent frustrations or bounce ideas off of him.

We've done our best to spell names correctly. Spellings were based on a roster of students enrolled during the 1995–96 year provided by the Registrar's Office. ID pictures were grouped according to class and this list also came from the Registrar's Office. If your name was omitted from a group to which you belonged, or if you were incorrectly identified, we apologize.

We sincerely thank these people for their contributions: Will Abbott, the Admissions staff, Susan Ames, Ken Borden, Bob Burchfield, Kelli Carr, Bob Coon, Alyson Davis, Craig Davis, Butch Fennema, Rosalie Fletcher, Beth Fultz, Joe Gentry, Chad Gray, Ernie Hahn, Cassie Hall, Cindy Holzhausen, Aaron Lambert, Pres. Lantz, Amber Martin, Donna McDougall, Peter Noot, Steve Nawrocki, Mariah Owen, Suzanne Pettypiece, Ron Popp, Bill Rasdell, Registrar's Office, Marilyn Rentsch, Nancy Steffel, Amber Swihart, Kay Wiley, and Carmen Young.

Volume 77 of The Oracle was printed by Jostens Printing & Publishing, Clarksville, TN, on glossy 80# Mead Gloss Offset Enamel. The Craftline embossed cover is 535 Black Fabrikoid, with 381 Silver Foil applied to raised text on cover and spine. Grain on cover is 1191 French Straight. Endsheets are 280 Snow White. Spot color in the first signature is #194 Tempo maroon. The book's trim size is 9 x 12", the binding is Smythe sewn, and there are 144 pages. Typefaces are Garamond and Tekton. Body copy is justified Garamond, 12 on 13.5. Photo caption lead-ins are Tekton, 10 on 11.5 and caption bodies are Garamond, 10 on 11.5. Folios are Tekton, 9 on 10.5.

Page composition was done on an Apple Power Mac 6100/66 using Aldus PageMaker 5.0. Pages were generated on a Hewlett Packard LaserJet 5MP using Jostens' Yeartech program and were submitted to the Clarksville plant on disk. The index was created using Jostens' Last Name First program. Pages were output to a Linotronic image processor on film at a resolution of 2032 dpi and converted to plates. Printing was done on 40" Miller and Heidelberg offset presses.

Custom color sizing of photographs in the first signature was done by Firehouse Image Center. The formal senior portraits were taken by MJM Photography; all other student portraits were digital images taken from the university ID card system. The Oracle is provided free as a service to all full-time undergraduate students at the University of Indianapolis.

J. Greg Allen Builders can change the WAY you live

Every home should make a statement about its owner.

Through personal consultation, our team of designers will develop a profile of your lifestyle so your home is designed specifically for you. We want your home to reflect your needs, tastes, and desires as well as to provide function, livability, and beauty.

In addition to superior design, J. Greg Allen homes are known for their fine cabinetry, interior trim, and attention to detail. Our exteriors reflect elegant brick arches, keystones, and impressive entryways. We use top quality materials and hire the best craftsmen.

We won't settle for the illusion of quality, and we're not satisfied with doing things the fast or inexpensive way. We do things the right way.

At J. Greg Allen, we have a commitment—and that commitment is excellence.
